Only a Dream.

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER

Methought I saw, the other night,
A wildly cheering crowd,
Which homage did unto a man
Of lordly mien and proud
Who condescended, now and then,
To smile upon the throng
As he trod upon the roses
Which his path were strewn along.
There were lawyers, savants, preachers
And actors there galore;
So many really famous men
I'd never seen before.
Indeed, I saw that in the crowd
(Their lustre somewhat dim)
Edison and the air ship man
Their hats took off to him.
My curiosity aroused,
I asked the haughty one:
"Who art thou? prithee, tell me,
And why this homage done?"
When, with a look of pity,
He promptly said: "I am
Inventor of a car door that
The brakeman cannot slam."

* * * * * * *

Then was I 'wakened by a sound
That drown'd the engine's scream;
The brakeman had passed through the car—
Alas, 'twas but a dream!

A "VAGRANT MOUNTEBANK."

WRITTEN FOR THE NEW YORK CLIPPER,
BY ROLAND B. HILL.

"Have you anything to say to this charge, prisoner?"

The judge of the police court of a certain large manufacturing and shipping city of Massachusetts looked down into the dock, where stood a trembling, dilapidated specimen of humanity, who, after sleeping, or trying to sleep, through the night just past on a wooden bench in a cheerless station house cell, was certainly not in "good form." The man, upon being addressed, lifted his head, put up his right hand to adjust his collar, and then smoothed out the creases in his wrinkled Prince Albert coat. It was a very old coat, had seen long and hard service, and there were soiled spots all over it. The prisoner, who was charged with having been on the previous evening in a state of intoxication, against the peace and dignity of the Commonwealth, cleared his throat, and made answer to the magistrate:

"The officers are no doubt right, your Honor; I do not deny that I, perhaps, had taken too much to drink; but I insist that I could have taken care of myself had I been let alone. Perhaps it was because I was trying to earn a little money with which to pay my expenses for the night that the officers became incensed. It is true that I had attracted a crowd of people, and was about to begin a little entertainment when I was seized."

"A little entertainment? What do you mean, sir? Are you then one of those disreputable vagrant mountebanks who infest the country?"

The judge spoke in a sneering, cold, contemptuous manner, and gazed with unsympathetic eyes upon the unfortunate brother human being whom circumstances had temporarily delivered into his charge. There was a stillness in the little court room, that became actually oppressive before the prisoner broke it by again speaking. It seemed as though he had been fighting a battle with himself, that he had been contending with anger, impatience, all the hasty and unwise elements of his being, before he allowed himself to open his lips in reply. During the silent struggle the red blood had mantled his white, haggard cheek and brow, and his long, narrow hands had closed convulsively. Now the blood receded from his face, leaving his beautiful regular features standing forth in marble whiteness. A calm, resigned light shone in his expressive blue eyes. He grasped the rail in front of him, and looked squarely into the judge's hard face.

"May it please your honor," he said—and not a lawyer or loafer in that so-called place of justice had ever heard such a musical voice speaking from that dock before—"it is very hard to be called a mountebank and a vagrant; but perhaps I am both in your eyes and in the eyes of the world. This, then"—he went on more as if he were talking with himself than as though he were addressing another party—"is the end of it all. A brief two years ago to be the petted favorite of a public that could not do me too much honor; today arraign me as a common nuisance and branded as a vagrant! I have nothing more to say, sir; I meant nobody harm. I was never arrested before. I would like, if you can do it, to be allowed to go on my weary way."

He sat down on the rough, much whittled prisoners' bench. The cold blooded judge sniffed contemptuously once or twice, wrote something on the back of a warrant, and handed it to the clerk, who faced the pale prisoner, saying, sharply: "John Harris, stand up!" Then he went on to read the sentence, which was that the aforesaid John Harris be fined the sum of three dollars and costs, in default of which he be confined for thirty days at the House of Correction." John Harris was taken away to a cell by a kindly disposed officer, who stopped a moment at his door to chat with him.

"I think the judge might have let you go," the officer said; "it won't do anybody any good to send you down."

"It matters very little, thank you," said the prisoner. "I've got beyond feeling anything. Maybe I'll die there, and that would be the very best solution of the question." The tone of utter despair and hopelessness in which the young man spoke struck a tender chord in the old policeman's breast. He had a son of his own about the same age as this unfortunate wanderer. What if his own boy should ever be in trouble and among strangers?

"Come, tell me something of your past life, and I may be able to help you in some manner," he said, spontaneously, and speaking straight from his heart. The genuineness of the sympathy thus tendered him made its full impression upon the outcast behind the bars. The poor fellow burst into tears, and great sobs convulsed him for a time. Then, made calmer by the fatherly words of the officer, he told the gray haired old man his life's history—how, because of a sudden jealous frenzy and a too free indulgence in the fatal cup, he had dropped from his high position as one of the leading athletes of the show world down to his present position of itinerant, tramping street exhibitor.

"I have bitterly paid for my folly," he cried, "and if only I could be restored to my dear wife and be given one more chance, I feel that this lesson would be sufficient."

The old officer went away from the young man's cell in a mood of deep reflection. He had about made up his mind that, if nothing else could be done, he would himself pay this repentant prisoner's fine, and let him go once more a free man. When he reached the outer office of the prison, and was about to hang up his keys, a well known, cheery voice greeted him—a voice he had not heard for a year—and he found himself grasping the hand of a big, handsome, smiling man, who, despite his genial expression, would nevertheless be picked out among a thousand as a man of keen, shrewd judgment and rare business qualifications.

"Well, Fred Lawrence, you're here again, eh? And another year has passed away. Well, it seems only yesterday that you came in to leave us tickets. How's the show doing, and how have you been?"

The officer poured a torrent of questions into the ears of his visitor, all of which being answered, Fred Lawrence, the famed press agent of Forepaugh's Great Show, then in the days of its strongest competition with Barnum, took out his ticket book and proceeded to count off the necessary number of coupons which would permit every policeman of the city to witness the grand and glorious arenic spectacle which Lawrence went about heralding. This was one of Fred's strongest points—the securing in advance of the good will of everybody occupying public positions. An expert judge of human nature, he knew that nothing would "catch on" with town functionaries, and induce them to say kind and flattering words about the show, than the enticing, prettily printed slips which called for admission at the great door which led into the enchanted precincts of the canvas covered fairyland.

"The show's booming, old man; we're knocking the 'Greatest on Earth' out right here in their own field. We've got the only white and sacred elephant in the world, and we'll back up our assertions with money!" Fred couldn't help talking a little "shop" to the good natured old turnkey.

"But Barnum says that his white elephant is the only genuine one; he says that the Forepaugh elephant was painted white at London," remarked the old man.

"Oh, that's all moonshine!" said Lawrence loftily; "That's some of Dave Thomas' bluff. Now there's the greatest press agent in the business," he went on seriously. "If I could equal that man in expedients, I'd think myself a king. Why, he came near knocking us clean out right at Philadelphia, where we belong, by bringing forward two boys, who claimed they had painted one sacred elephant white over at London. Great genius is Dave Thomas!"

With this magnanimous tribute to his greatest rival, Mr. Lawrence turned to leave, when all at once the officer thought of his miserable prisoner locked up back in the cell.

"By the way, Mr. Lawrence," he said, "I begin to think that you happened in here providentially this morning," and then he went on to tell the showman all he knew of his extraordinary captive. Lawrence asked to see the man, and was conducted back to the cell. His first exclamation, upon catching a glimpse of the pale, troubled face back of the iron grating, was one of recognition.

"Good Heaven! Santley, how do you happen in such a place as this?" Lawrence put forth his hand and grasped that of the imprisoned one, and the two men stood for a moment silently gazing into each others eyes. The officer discreetly retired.

"Mr. Lawrence," said the man behind the bars, when he could control his voice, "have you seen Leila recently—is she well?"

"I saw her only last week, old man, while we were showing at Boston. She was well, but gloomy and downcast. She's never been herself since you went away from her and the show two years ago. You were all wrong about that affair, Santley—all wrong. But I'm not going to talk to you any longer while you remain in that hole. What's the matter, anyhow? What must I do to secure your release?"

When he was told the cause of the athlete's trouble, Lawrence stepped again into the prison office, paid the man's fine, had a carriage called, and the two were soon seated at a substantial breakfast. Afterward they talked long and seriously in Lawrence's room, and then the press agent sat down and wrote a note to his chief, Mr. Forepaugh, who was with the show. This note he handed to Santley, saying: "Give this to the 'old man,' and I guess everything will be all right. Your wife has been doing a single trapeze act since you disappeared. Everybody has been kind to her. Now, Santley, brace up; be a man! Make it all up with that brave little woman, go to work and let liquor alone. There's plenty of happiness in store for you if you only do your part!"

Tears came into the eyes of the acrobat as he listened to this brief, sincere and Godlike sermon from the lips of as good and square a man as ever walked this earth. He pressed Lawrence's hand in silence, and then the big hearted agent crushed a bank note into the trembling man's hand and said good bye.

Lawrence went about his business of booming the coming show, and the man whom he had snatched from the depths of despair took the next train to connect with Forepaugh, with a jubilant feeling in his heart and with hope once more urging him on to new efforts for success.

Ten days later the Great Forepaugh Aggregation made its advent into the same city where Fred Santley was arrested, branded as a vagrant, tried and convicted by a proud, cold hearted judge. It was a perfect June day, and far off the clear waters of Buzzard's Bay were gleaming in the dancing sunlight. The big town was in holiday attire. The fishermen had left their nets; the hardy whalers had deserted their vessels even in the act of making ready for long cruises to the farthest ends of the earth; the busy, hive like mills were deserted by the thousands of operatives who usually swarmed in them like the myriads of bees in their active conic homes.

The circus had come to town!

Away dull care! Vanish all thoughts of every day drudgery! The notes of the band were heard as the great glittering procession moved slowly along; the herds of elephants, the gaudy cages of lions and tigers, the chattering colonies of frolicsome monkies were en route to the tented field, and what mattered work or business?

So the children laughed, the old peopled smiled as they reminiscently allowed their minds to wander back into the labyrinthian ways of the past, and the entire great whirling city took on a gala day appearance.

The afternoon performance was pronounced superb by those who attended, and, of course, there was a grand rush at night. Everybody went then. The lightning ticket seller, from his elevated perch in his beautifully decorated wagon, had seldom glanced over such a sea of swaying, pushing, crowding, anxious humanity. His shirt sleeves were rolled up to his elbows, the perspiration poured from his high white brow, the money lay in great billowy piles back of him on the floor of the wagon. This pile was momentarily growing higher as the long, white, be-diamoned fingers of the expert flashed like gleams of light over the heads of the surging throng. When the last "pasteboard" was disposed of, the "lightning artist" fell back exhausted, and his weary head rested heavily upon the towering pile of greenbacks that reared above him.

Inside the great main tent the splendid exhibition was in full blast. The grand entree was over. In one ring a bareback rider was making ready to bestride and manage four fiery steeds as they whirled wildly around the arena. The magnificent horses were restive and stamped the ground impatiently, while the velvet clad grooms stood steadily at their heads.

In the next ring a man and woman, all spotless white, and gleaming with flashing silver, were gracefully poising in mid air, flying like beautiful, fearless birds, from one slight, swinging perch to another. Their act was finished just as the famous bareback rider bestrode his four untamed steeds, and stood ready for the ringmaster's word to dash away upon his perilous whirl. The graceful acrobats in the second ring had descended from the aerial heights, and stood in the centre of the sawdust circle, bowing, as the thousands of half mad people screamed and shouted their delight. They were retiring, backing out of the ring in the direction of the dressing room, when, suddenly, from the ring where stood the prancing horses there came a cry too real, too awful to be mistaken. The famous rider lay upon his back, the grooms had been thrown aside as though they were wooden marionettes, while round and round the ring, snorting, raging, with froth issuing from their trembling nostrils, dashed the four Arabian beauties, wild with terror, inflamed and maddened by the noise made by the excited human multitude.

Would they keep within bounds of the ring. This was the question that every man, woman and child in that great concourse of people put to himself or herself.

And even as they asked the question the foremost steed, a midnight-black stallion, leaped the low wall that bounded the ring, and, falling for a moment to his knees, was up again and dashing with almost winged swiftness past the lower tiers of people and towards the main entrance!

A great, suppressed, half choking shriek of terror arose to the lips of the people and froze there when half uttered, for directly in the path of the on-rushing, crushing, death-dealing beast stood a tall gentleman wearing a high silk hat, and at his side, her little hand resting in that of her father, was a beautiful, daintily dressed little girl!

The man had seen the on-coming doom that menaced him and the darling of his heart, but to save his life he could not move. He was as one paralyzed, knowing nothing, doing nothing but to spasmodically tighten his grasp upon the tiny hand of his darling, and instinctively draw her toward himself.

Then the glowing eyes, the distended nostrils, the crunching metalic hoofs, the hot, moist breath of the mad brute was upon him—when ——

A streak of dazzling white shot meteor-like toward him, a lithe, glittering form sprang through the air and grasped and grappled at the midnight stallion's neck and hung dangling there, and staggered the great beast, and fought him as he sought to crash onward, to deal death to that beauteous flower of a child!

The eyes of the father swam before him; he felt hands pushing and pulling him to one side—but still his eyes were riveted on that tragedy of the raging horse and the clinging, fighting form in shining white silver.

And at last the infuriated animal had shaken loose the encircling arms of the being who had risked all to stop its mad career, and, as the glittering, beautifully shaped body of the athlete fell to the ground, the stallion, with a mad neigh, brought one cruel, shining hoof down upon the hero's breast, and the next moment that virgin costume of glimmering, silvery brightness was all deeply dyed with blood!

But the danger to the crowd was all over. The horses were all recaptured, and led again into the ring, the ring master made a little speech, and the show went on.

"Bring him to my home at once—he has saved my child!"

The voice of the judge of the police court, the same judge who had called Fred Santley "vagrant" and "mountebank," was now low and earnest as he bent over the bleeding form of that same Fred Santley, now in the dressing room of the circus.

"It would be the best thing for the poor fellow," said the doctor; "he will be laid up for a long time."

And so it came about that into the refined home of the unsympathetic administrator of justice there went as a welcome guest a man whom he had once found guilty and sentenced to prison. Fred Santley's wife went with him and nursed him, and eventually the two acrobats, members of a show company, found a place in the hearts of the judge and all his family, which they have since retained.

And the judge frankly admits that he has learned a valuable lesson.

THE INDEBTEDNESS OF THE WORLD IN 1890, according to the latest Census Bulletin, is as follows: Foreign nations, $25,636,075,840; the United States, $915,962,112—States and Territories, $223,107,883—Counties, $141,960,845. From the summary published, it is seen that, relatively, the burden of debt falls far heavier upon the inhabitants of the principal foreign countries, except those of Germany, than upon those of this country. France, in 1889, had a debt per capita of $116.35, and it is understood that this does not include certain annuties of an unstated but large amount; Great Britain, though slowly decreasing its debt, had a burden at that time of $87.79 per capita; Russia, $30.79; Austria-Hungary, $70.84; Italy, $76.06; Belgium, $63.10; the Netherlands, $95.56, while that of the United States was but $14.63, and of its indebtedness nearly one half was made up of non interest bearing notes. While individual fluctuations in the amounts of indebtedness of the seventy-nine foreign nations reported, have been considerable during the decade, the aggregated indebtedness shows relatively but little change, especially if compared with the increase of population. The public debt of the United States shows a decrease within the last ten years from $38.33 per capita in 1880 to $14.63 in 1890. The indebtedness of the states and territories has also decreased $67,218,760 during the decade, reducing the per capita from $5.79 in 1880 to $3.56 in 1890. It should be remembered, however, that of the total decrease of state debt as reported there has been scaled by refunding in some of the Southern States about $28,500,000. The indebtedness of the counties, though increasing somewhat within the decade, has not kept pace with the increase of population, and the per capita has been reduced from $2.47 in 1880 to $2.27 in 1890. Aggregating the national, state and county indebtedness, the per capita shows a decrease from $46.89 in 1880 to $20.46 in 1890, or more than one half, and this decrease has been brought about mainly by voluntary taxation.

FROM OTHER POINTS.

Chicago, Philadelphia, Louisville, Pittsburg, Washington, Etc.

[Special Dispatches to the New York Clipper.]

CHICAGO, May 26.—The only new attraction this week is "The Patrol," at the Chicago Opera. It is a five act play by Scott Marble, and proved a failure, in spite of the efforts of a fairly good company, including Clarence Handysides, Mittens Willett, Luke Schoolcraft and others..... At the Haymarket last night the Bostonians opened their annual engagement before the largest audience of the season at that house. "Robin Hood" was given in fine style..... There were no novelties at the minor houses. The Sunday openings were big. Tony Pastor turned away people at the Alhambra, as did "The Bottom of the Sea" at Havlin's..... R. McWade, in "Rip Van Winkle," at the Windsor, and "Only a Farmer's Daughter," at the Academy, were the only companies not here last week..... "Alabama" continues to test the capacity of Hooley's, and "Blue Jeans" is still crowding McVicker's.

PITTSBURG, May 26.—Yesterday afternoon the White Cross Society asked the police to interfere to prevent the presentation of "The Clemenceau Case" at the Bijou. The result was that 2,600 people paid to see the show, and the police did not interfere, although present in great numbers..... Bristol's Show filled the Grand Opera House also..... Dan Kelly, in "The Shadow Detective," packed Harris'..... Both the World's and Harry Davis' Museums were full day and night.

WASHINGTON, May 26.—The Lamont Opera Co., in "The White Hussar," which is "The Red Hussar" rechristened, opened Rapley's National Summer opera season to a packed and enthusiastic house. Recalls were frequent, and floral tributes were numerous..... A clever production of "The Gondoliers," by the Carleton Co., marked the first appearance of Lilly Post at Albaugh's. The house was good..... Henry Belmer's "Border King" Co. failed to materialize at Harris', and the house is consequently dark..... The Globe's opening was fully up to its predecessors in point of attendance and attractions.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26.—The Summer opera season was inaugurated at the Grand Opera House last night, when the Duff Opera Co. produced "Dorothy" to a crowded and appreciative audience..... The Park Theatre had "Erminie" as the bill, and an "S. R. O." audience testified to the perennial popularity of the tuneful old timer..... The Foy Foster Co., at the Central, did well..... At the Bijou, "The Mascot" entertained big crowds all day..... "Keep It Dark" had a fair house at Lyceum, and the Dime Museum entertained big crowds as usual..... "Oliver Twist," at the South Street had fair attendance, while the Casino's business was poor.

LOUISVILLE, May 26.—Harris' opened to a rousing house to see Mark Murphy in "O'Dowd's Neighbors." ..... The Buckingham was packed to the doors by the friends of Col. Savage, at his annual benefit..... The Grand Central opened to a fair house.

CLEVELAND, May 26.—The Baker Opera Co. opened their Summer season at the Opera House last evening, and turned hundreds away, giving excellent satisfaction.

WHITE TENTS.

NOTES FROM ROBINSON'S SHOW.—Since our last letter we have been doing a big business everywhere. At Covington, Ky., Newport and Charleston, W. Va., with two big shows billed against us, we did a phenomenal business. The show is in fine order now, and works like a clock. The spectacular "King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba" is setting the people wild, and draws people who seldom, if ever, visit a tent show. Constantine, the ballet master, has his one hundred girls in fine shape, and is a hard worker. John F. Robinson has been absent from the show for the past week, but will return at Mt. Sterling, Ky. Orrin Hollis is doing a fine act this season. The Demott Family are all riding in fine form, and they, with George Hallowell, make up a strong list of riders. The Dares are going with a boom this season. Wishmaker Wilson feels happy. It keeps Dan Dale busy handling the long green for it is coming in like rain. Gill Robinson is as busy as ever watching for storms and blow downs. Elegant weather has been the rule so far, and nothing has happened to mar the bright troupe. Ed. Cullen is a very able assistant to Mr. Robinson, and always has a kind word for every one. The boys have organized a ball club, and some high times are expected soon. They will play the local team at Mt. Sterling. The Miaco Family are pleasing the public greatly this season. James West is doing some great knockabout work. We show for a week in Kentucky, then into Tennessee for a few days. Everything is booming and the Old Reliable will create a sensation wherever it goes, as the Western people are not used to such a display as the Robinson boys are giving them this season.

"DAN," the African lion at the Zoo, Philadelphia, which had been a favorite with the little visitors to the garden since his arrival in March, died May 20. The big "King of the Desert" was a victim of the grip, which finally resulted in pneumonia. He was remarkable for his size, measuring nine feet from head to tail, and standing four feet high. He weighed two hundred and fifty pounds, was three years old, and came from Breslau Garden, Ger. Hopes of his recovery were entertained up to within five days before his death, when he refused to take any nourishment or medicine, which he had taken regularly since his first sickness. The post mortem examination was held by Superintendent Brown, assisted by Head Keeper Byrne. The animal's skeleton will be sent to the Academy of Natural Sciences.

NOTES FROM HURLBURT & LEFTWICH'S CIRCUS.—The show is touring South Dakota with great success. We have not lost a stand nor had a losing day since we opened April 25. Mrs. Hurlburt joined us last week at Iriquois, and has taken her late husband's place in the firm. Everybody gave her a warm welcome. Mr. Winn is making a hit with the horses and dogs. The boys have great sport shooting snipe, Mexican Billy and Charlie Wren being the most fortunate hunters. Taylor & Ament, who have the sideshow and concert privilege, are great hustlers, and never fail to catch a big percentage of the people. We have played in a number of towns which had never been visited by a circus. The show is patronized by tribes of Indians, who seem to have plenty of money, which they spend freely. The sideshow paintings seem to be a great attraction, and they stand before them for hours. Everybody is in good health, and the white spectre perambulates regularly.

PIONEER CAR NO. 1, of the Barnum & Bailey Show, is billing the towns and cities in the West on the route of that show. It is said to be one of the most thoroughly equipped circus advertising cars in the country. It carries tons of paper, a picked force of billposters is supplied with steam boilers and a typewriter, and one of the most experienced circus press agents accompany the car. It is in charge of Thomas Daily, who has with him the following people: Augustus Miller, James A. Lyons, John Shire, C. P. Langdon, Charles Reynolds, J. D. Plant, Lawrence Gero, P. E. Fleming, Benj. Green, W. S. Harris, George Elms, Charles Collins, William Thompson, Frank Pearl and Jos. Pickard. General Agent William H Gardner directs the movements of the "Hustler," as the car is called, by telegraph.

THE project of a permanent circus in this city, which has been announced with more or less confidence from time to time, is declared to be so far advanced that there is no doubt of its being finally accomplished, and it is expected that some definite announcements of details will be made within two or three weeks. Several wealthy men of this city are interested in the plans, and there will be a capital of about $750,000. Theodore Hellman, president the Eden Musee Co., is one of the financial backers, and Ernest A. Jurgens, of the Eden Musee, will probably be connected with the management, as he is already with the preliminary arrangements. Two sites are under consideration, and both are regarded as desirable.

ROSTER OF SCHRINER & CO.'S CIRCUS: J. M. Barry, manager; Geo. Sieber, treasurer; Lew. Cole, Wm. Dorr and wife, Prof. Bowman and wife, Pete Rogan and wife, Sam Grassberger, J. T. Carrier, Mohing Bros., James Woods, J. R. Godfrey, Master Jimmie Sieber and W. A. Worel, leader of band, with ten pieces.

THE TWO AHERNS, Wm. and Minnie, joined the Lemen Bros.' Shows at Kansas City, May 18, to do their new balancing ladder perch act.

MINNIE DUNNE, and not Mary Hunt, was driving the lady's chariot at the recent accident of the Forepaugh Show.

HADJ TAHAR & HASSAN BEN ALI'S TROUPE of Moorish and Bedouin Arabs have closed with the "Superba" Co., and are at present performing successfully with Sells Bros.' Circus. Hadj Tahar is an Elk, and he claims the distinction of being the only Arab member of the order.

BESSIE FERRELL, one of the principal riders of Buffalo Bill's Wild West, sailed for Europe May 20. She joins the show at Antwerp, Ger.

ROSTER OF SMITH & ROBINSON'S SHOW: C. J. Smith, proprietor and manager; Sig. Frisco Guirell, equestrian director; Ed. Cooney, leader of band; Walter Wilson, leader of orchestra; Harry Smith, Oscar Powell, Chas. Everton, Ernest Vindel and Harry Knight. Geo. Day has charge of the canvas, with five assistants. Frank Dill has the concert, and Frank Morris is in advance. Prof. Zeb. Nero, aeronaut, is making a successful balloon ascension and parachute leap each day, and is a great card. The show is doing a good business, and the white spectre perambulates every Sunday morning.

NOTES FROM SELLS BROS.' SHOW.—Since last writing the weather has grown much warmer, and business has been better in consequence. Peter Sells paid us a short visit the past week. His reports from the advance are encouraging. Wm. Gorman, who had the misfortune to break his arm while at Columbus, O., has entirely recovered, and made his first appearance last week. Allen Sells' trained stallion and Geo. Kline's performing donkey are recent additions to our programme. Our hippodrome contests are more spirited than ever, the management having selected the racers from some of the most noted Kentucky farms, and the riders are naturally desirous of seeing who really has the best team. The rivalry between Dutton, Kline and Weitzel is particularly strong. Our Moorish Caravan, Hassan Ben Ali's Troupe of Arabs and Cyrene, the Spanish dancer, are some of our features, and are drawing cards of the first order. Col. Chas. Seeley looks after our friends of the press, and it goes without saying that they are entertained in a highly satisfactory manner.

Business is good.

DR. FORD was a visitor to Healy & Bigelow's Kickapoo Indian Medicine Co., No. 35, for a couple of weeks. He departed May 16, for Richmond, Va., where he now has charge of one of H. & B.'s parties. The night before he left the company presented him with a watch, chain and other useful presents. He is a fine gentleman, and one that the firm should feel proud of.

THE VERNELOS, Ed. and Ina, closed with Walter L. Main's Circus May 11, and joined Gallmar Bros.' Circus 16. They opened at Barabpo, Wis., and are doing a big business.

A PERFORMANCE of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was given at Nephi, Utah, last week, which was very ludicrous. Charles S. Nichols' white tent dramatic company gave the play. Nephi was reached in a pouring rain. The tent was erected in the hope that the rain would cease long enough to permit the removal of the scenery from the railroad car. Despite the storm, a big crowd gathered under the canvas. At 8.30 o'clock Mr. Nichols stepped before the people and told them to apply at the door and get their money back, stating that he was unable to get his scenery from the car, and hence could not produce the play. But the audience cared not for the scenery, and clamored for "Uncle Tom's Cabin." The play was then given on a hastily improvised stage, with no more stage effect than was used by the ancient Greeks in giving their classic drama. Even the placard announcing what scene was intended was absent. But the play went merrily to the end. Liza escaped across the frozen river—of shaking boards. Little Eva died on a hastily improvised bed, with no tableau angels coming down the rear of the stage for her. And through it all the cook of the company, preparing the midnight meal in the rear of the stage, was plainly visible. Never was farce comedy greeted with such roars of laughter as was this unique performance of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

SMITH & FRALANDO'S GREAT BRITISH CIRCUS has done a big business ever since the opening. Jerry Keating and Ed. Harrigan recently joined. Ajax, the contortionist, is knocking them out with his acts. While taking a long drive from Spring Grove, Minn., to Houston, the band wagon was followed by a black bear, which was shot by one of the boys.

LEMEN BROS.' CIRCUS, which opened its season at Kansas City, Mo., May 4, has just concluded a profitable three weeks' engagement in that city, and begun its tour of the Southwest. The roster: John J. Holland, general agent; Bud Hyer, contracting agent; Frank Rosenthal, boss billposter; John Babcock, boss canvasman. Performers—Maretta Sisters, May Crittenden, Dayton Sisters, Lulu Wentworth, De Casto and Le Mar, Herman George, Dixon Bros., Ed. Craig, Wm. Cummings, L. Mayo, Wm. Chase, Al. Ferney, Gus Clarke, Fred Monta, Burt. Peters and Wyndam Church. The band of ten pieces is in charge of Prof. Al. Parker.

BILLY STEWART, manager of the Five Stewart Bros., was married at Hebron, Neb., April 17, to Hazel Coleman, a non-professional. The Stewart Bros. have joined Hunter & Dunlap's Medicine Co. for the Summer season. Hunter & Dunlap, proprietors; Dr. C. B. Hunter, manager; G. W. Dunlap, treasurer; Billy Stewart, stage manager; Prof. Neal, leader of band, with seven pieces; Prof. Goodwin, leader of orchestra, with four pieces; P. H. Hess, boss canvasman, with four assistants. The Stewart Bros. give the entire entertainment.

OLIVER'S GREAT EASTERN SHOWS opened to good business at Montevideo, Minn., May 16. Frank Fuller's silver cornet band is with the show.

A CABLEGRAM from Berlin, Ger., dated May 22, says: "In a collision today between a passenger train and a special train conveying Carre's Circus troupe, at Kirchlengern, near Osnabruck, a number of persons were killed, including Mme. Carre, the wife of the proprietor, and her daughter. The engineer and fireman of the circus train and two guards were also killed, and twenty persons were seriously injured. The trains came together with a frightful shock, and the force of the collision was so great that three of the carriages were telescoped and smashed into fragments.

W. D. WESTLAKE, proprietor of Westlake's New Orleans Museum, recently added some large snakes to his collection. He reports a prosperous season.

ASHTON'S BIG TEN CENT SHOW opened at Shelbyville, Ind., May 11, and report a splendid business. Flint Barlow and Oat Butterfield have joined them.

ROSTER of Healy & Bigelow's Indian Medicine Co.: Dr. Tokowana, lecturer; John Sadler, manager; Parry Wilson, Charles Davis, John B. Healy and Shirden.

THE manager of Barnum & Bailey's "Greatest Show on Earth" was summoned to appear before Alderman Stead, at Williamsport, Pa., May 21. The charge was that of posting bills on a barn at Montgomery Station, and not paying for the same. The gentlemanly manager for Mr. Bailey paid $12 and costs to R. B. Montgomery, and the case was settled. After the case was disposed of, the gentlemen were all invited by the manager to go and witness the evening's performance.

DURING Barnum & Bailey's engagement at Sunbury, Pa., May 20, Mrs. Crist Cover, of Herndon, fell from the top seat during the afternoon performance, and broke her leg. She was sixty years of age. The manager for the circus gave her $15, paid the doctor $25 to attend her, and gave Mrs. Willard, to whose house she was taken, $25 to care for her.

NOTES FROM THE HUNTING SHOW.—Business continues good through Western Pennsylvania. At Wheeling, W. Va., May 12, Claude Meredith, a former member of our company, led the parade. S. R. Shepherd, another old timer, also visited the show. Dwight Clapp, of the Jackson Show, was with us at Wellsburg 15. A troupe of jubilee singers have been added to Griffin's Annex. At Washington 20, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children had Mr. Hunting arrested for allowing his son, Lew, to appear in the ring, but Lew was proven to be over the required age, and the Society had to pay costs, etc. James Ford joined the company at Pittsburg. De Hobbs is making a decided hit in his grotesque juggling act. We have had more sickness than usual among the company this season, but at present all are well and happy.

THE LA MOYNE BROS., have joined Coup & McDonald's Show at Chicago.

NELLIE COUPE RUGLER is doing well with the Forepaugh Show.

TROVER AND MCDONALD have not taken another performer into their firm, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

ROSTER of Rich & Metties' Ring Show and Trained Animal Exhibition: Rich & Metties, proprietors; Robert Stickney, equestrian manager; Mettie Family, Phanion Family, Max Hugo, Avalas and Gilbert, Joseph Robie, Samuel Dock, Minnie Roberts, Flora Smith, Samuel Greer, Dick Flemins, Andy Johnson, Robert Wilson, Laten Hertel, Max Hagerty, Prof. H. R. Jacobs, Bert Whitman, Chas. Higgins, Edwin Fox, Bill Jackson, Steve Buch and J. M. Richard.

F. S. MONCAYO and his daughter have joined Dick P. Sutton's Circus. Mrs. Ettie Moncayo remains at New Orleans three weeks longer.

THE report of the Central Park Menagerie for the year ending Dec. 31, 1890, speaks well for its management. There were exhibited during the year 900 animals, including 220 species, 151 genera and 65 families. Of the animals, 523 were mammals, 285 were birds and 92 were reptiles. The number of registered additions to the menagerie during the year was 463. Of these 176 were presented, 66 were purchased, 36 were born at the menagerie, 4 were received in exchange, and 179 were placed on exhibition. The most notable additions to the collection were, by gift, three red deer, presented by William Rockefeller; two Egyptian jerboas presented by Dr. A. McL. Hamilton; two Alaska dogs brought from the glacial section of that country by Lieutenant T. Emmons, U. S. N.; by purchase, one Bubaline antelope; by deposit, one briudled gnu; by birth at menagerie, two monkeys, two nylghei, one leucoryx, one vulpine phalanger and one hippopotamus. The principal losses were a female bison and the female chimpanzee. The money expended in maintaining the collection during the year was nearly $28,000. The improvements made were building six outside paddocks attached to the antelope house, painting the exterior of the carnivora building and building an addition to the hippopotamus tank.

CALKIN'S BUSY WORLD opened at Glens Falls, N. Y., May 21 to a crowded canvas. The roster is: A. J. Wibb, manager; Mrs. Wibb, treasurer; A. B Campbell (Dandy Doc), lecturer, and L. Calkins, proprietor.

MANAGER GEORGE W. ORBIN, who has been traveling through Southern countries since last Fall, has just returned to the city, and is stopping at the Gedney House.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

Washington.—Playgoers had little choice last week, as only three of our places were open. RHODE ISLAND.

Providence.—This week opened with first class attractions at all the theatres, and business promises to be unusually large, considering the lateness of the season. The event of last week was the first production on any stage of John Setetson's new three act farce comedy, "The Hornet's Nest," at the Providence Opera House, May 21-23, preliminary to its presentation at the Globe Theatre, Boston. Although the play ran smoothly, it met with harsh treatment at the hands of the local critics, and will undoubtedly have to be materially changed before it will become a success. The first and third acts were evidently taken from "Forbidden Fruit," and, although the dialogue has been considerably changed, the characters in both plays are almost identical. The second act, a rehearsal at the Folly Theatre, serves to introduce several clever specialty performers, including Geo. Leslie, Ben Lodge, Louise Allen and Geo. Boniface Jr., whose efforts in this direction were highly appreciated by the rather meagre audiences. Manager John Stetson was present on the opening night and expressed his satisfaction with the play. Gray & Stephens' Co delighted large audiences at Keith's Gaiety. The company closed its road tour here 23. "Black Hawks" proved a strong drawing card at the Westminster Theatre, and good business was the rule throughout the week. At Lothrop's Providence Museum, H. Percy Meldon and Stella C. Ainsworth, at the head of Lothrop's Boston Stock, in "Lynwood," and a strong specialty list, drew fairly well. Treasurer Walter B. Smith was tendered a benefit afternoon and evening of 22, when a large number of volunteers appeared. The attendance was excellent. The Boston Stock will not appear here again this season. The company left for Boston 24, to open a five weeks' engagement 25, at the Grand Museum, after which they go to Lothrop's Portland, Me., Theatre, for the Summer.

PROVIDENCE OPERA HOUSE.—"A Fair Rebel," with Edward R. Mawson and Fanny Gillette in the leading roles, opened a week's engagement 25, for the benefit of Companies E, F and H, Second Regiment, Rhode Island militia. The bill also includes the Brown University Glee, Banjo and Mandolin Clubs, exhibitions in fencing with foils and broadswords by Professor Napoleon Servatius and a number of his pupils, and exhibition drills by local and visiting military companies.

Fannin will be tendered a complimentary benefit afternoon and evening of 29, when "Richard III" will be presented, with the beneficiary in the title role. NOTES.—The season at Jacques' will close about June 8.....Mrs. F. W. Ingraham (Rose Graham), F. W. Ingraham and Manager Ed. L. WISCONSIN.

Milwaukee.—Two more weeks, and the Bijou will close its second season, which has proved a very successful one. Edwin Arden, in "Eagle's Nest," forms this week's attraction. "U. T. C." has not lost its drawing powers, as was demonstrated last week, Thearle's Co. playing to good attendance. The closing attraction will be "The Two Sisters."

ACADEMY.—Chas. A. Gardner closes the season May 30, 31. The performance 30 will be for the benefit of L. J. Rodrigues, treasurer of the Davidson and Academy.

GEORGIA.

Atlanta.—Prof. Cannady, hypnotist, had De Give Opera House May 18, 19, 20. At the close of the third performance he was pronounced a fraud and his hypnotism a sell by two doctors. To avoid trouble, the professor offered to refund the money, which offer, however, was not accepted.

The one hundredth performance of "The Senator" occurred April 22; on this occasion, Stuart Robson, who was playing "The Henrietta" at Proctor's Twenty-third Street Theatre, this city, rode from his own show house to the Star in order to congratulate Mr. Crane. The second act was on when Mr. Robson entered the theatre, but he went down the aisle, mounted the stage, and, in a humorous speech, assured Mr. Crane of his delight at the success of "The Senator." The appearance of his former partner rather nonplussed the vigorous comedian, and he was at a loss for words to make reply. The people cheered and called for a speech, however, and then, after the excitement had subsided, Mr. Crane thanked Mr. Robson, wished him all possible good luck, and also thanked the spectators for their "kind appreciation of his efforts to please them." A souvenir photograph and playbill was another feature of the occasion.

Georgie Drew Barrymore was ill night of May 1, and her place in the cast was filled by Lizzie Hudson Collier, while Leonora Bradley played Mabel. Mrs. Barrymore resumed afternoon of 3.

"The Senator" closed its engagement May 10, and was followed 12 by "The Shatchen," a three act comedy by Henry Doblin and his brother, the actor known as Charles S. During the week of May 19 the ticket office, which for years stood in the centre of the lobby, was removed, making the space clear and unobstructed from the street to the entrance of the auditorium. A store on Thirteenth Street was utilized as the box office, and an opening in the side of the lobby for the purchase of tickets.

A special matinee performance of "The Shatchen" took place May 22, for the benefit of the Post Graduate Hospital.

A matinee performance took place Thursday, Sept. 4, for the benefit of the Grand Lodge, B. P. O. Elks. An entertainment the same afternoon took place at the Academy of Music. The result was a great disappointment, as the attendance at both theatres was very bad. The price fixed for orchestra seats, and the best seats in the orchestra circle and balcony, at the testimonial performances, was $2.50 each, with an admission charge of $1. One ticket, however, admitted the holder to both the Academy and the Star. Each performance began at one o clock, and the curtains in both houses were rung up on probably the smallest audiences that ever greeted such elaborate programmes. The bill had these names: Daniel Sully's Co., in an act from "The Millionaire;" W. Tazevill Fox, the Natuskies, Brothers Borani, Hallen and Hart, Bobby Gaylor, McKee Rankin's Co. in the third act of "The Canuck," Louis Harrison, Rodman and Carbette, Henry Hallam, Carmencita, Fred. The club known as the Five A's took a benefit Sunday evening, 9. Louisa Eldridge, Carmencita, Sylvia Gerrish, Leonora Bradley, Judith Berolde, Kate Bartlett, Grace Wilson and Isabel Urquhart sold flowers. The programme opened with a cornet solo by Walter B. Rogers, followed by Fanny D. Hall with songs, Dale on musical instruments, Mamie Hayman, vocalist; Robert Hilliard, recitation; the child actress, Little Tuesday, in songs, etc.; Leo Stormont, songs; Harry Kernell, comic specialties; piano solo by W. W. Lowitz, a song by Raymond Moore, comic songs by Bessie Bonehill and Charles Reed, character sketches by Richard F. Carroll, a song by Harry Pepper, a variety of "take offs" by Frank Bush, and a song by the Harry Pepper Quartet. Marie Tempest came from Philadelphia to sing, but a sore throat prevented her doing more than showing herself to the audience. Laura Burt gave a stump speech.

At the matinee performance of Nov. 15, W. H. Crane fainted and fell to the stage during the third act. The last act was played with Geo. F. Devere in Crane's role. Mr. Crane played that night. [TO BE CONTINUED.]

— The engagement of the Kruger English Opera Co. came to a sudden close May 22 at the Grand Opera House, Brooklyn, N. Y. The trouble was financial. Sig. Guille, the tenor, according to an arrangement with Manager Kruger, was to receive his salary each night before the raising of the curtain, and until 22 this rule had been observed. That night Mr. Kruger was mysteriously absent, and, as the tenor's money was not forthcoming at the time for beginning the performance, the audience was subjected to a brief delay while the members of the company were conferring behind the scenes. Mr. Guillo was induced to go on until the close of the second act, when he refused to sing another note unless the money was planked down. Mr. Kruger, who, it is said, had meanwhile made unsuccessful efforts to raise the necessary cash, appealed in vain to the tenor to continue the performance, and, after considerable confusion, both before and behind the curtain, the members of the company hurried to their dressing rooms and removed their stage costumes. While the audience was wondering what all the trouble was about, W. G. Sammis, business manager for Knowles & Morris, appeared before the curtain and announced that the latter were in no way responsible for the predicament, not having had any previous notification of the financial deadlock. He declared the engagement of the opera company at an end, and told the people holding coupons to call at the box office, 23, and get back their money. There were forty-five members of the company and twenty-four in the orchestra.

— Michael Mullone, lessee and manager of the new Opera House, Jersey City, is well known in theatrical circles. Mr. Mullone conducted The Jersey City Argus, then one of the leading daily newspapers of the State, from 1874 to 1886, when, on account of ill health, he disposed of the paper and gave up journalism. Some years ago he filled the position of Exalted Ruler of New York Lodge of Elks. Mr. Mullone is a member of the New York Athletic Club, the American Yacht Club, Mecca Temple, Mystic Shrine, and several other prominent organizations. Since his retirement from journalism he has devoted his time to the care of his large property interests.

— Oliver Byron and Arthur Rehan are to leave San Francisco for the East early this week. Mr. Byron goes to Long Branch to pass the Summer with his family.

THE WORLD OF PLAYERS

Un Soupir.

Why should we dream of pleasure
Our hearts can never measure?
Why cling to senseless shows of earth
That cheat us with their hollow mirth?
Death's hand, relentless, will not spare
Aught of life's joys, however rare;
Our youthful dreams will only rise
To speed away on hopeless sighs.
The boons for which our souls do pray
Are granted oft, but never stay;
Like scenes upon the mimic stage,
We paint our hopes from age to age;
But as they bloom they melt like snow,
Leaving behind them naught but woe!
These phantom pleasures are not real.
We dream—we never really feel!
The beauteous azure of the sky
Is not—'tis only mockery!
Happy seeds of earlier years
Are nurtured oft by bitter tears,
And as the world glides on apace
And mirth and sorrow run their race,
Our hopeful hearts beat high to see
Which of the two will victor be.
With saddened hearts and whitened hair
We note that sorrow wins her share.
Ah! life is a mockery that we rue
Bon Seigneur, ayez pitie de nous!

CRIPTIE PALMONI.

— J. C. Duff, of the Duff Opera Co., has brought a suit for $7,300 against the Western Union Telegraph Co. Mr. Duff's company was playing at Boston in the latter part of last January, and late one night Mr. Duff was notified of an action to be brought against him by the Metropolitan Job Printing Co., of this city, for $1,800. Mr. Duff wrote a message on ordinary letter paper at his hotel, and addressed it to his lawyer, of this city. The message directed the lawyer to negotiate a settlement; but it was delivered to another lawyer of the same name at a different address, who sent it by his office boy to Mr. Duff's lawyer late in the afternoon. In consequence of the delay, Mr. Duff says, he was arrested in Boston at the instance of the Metropolitan Printing Co., and had to stay in that city two days longer than he had intended, in order to make a settlement. The blunder of the telegraph company, he says, created considerable confusion in his plans. At the time his "Babes in the Wood" Co. was playing at Niblo's, and negotiations were pending for a production at Palmer's Theatre, and his enforced absence from the city caused much of the alleged damage. The telegraph company's answer to the complaint was served last Monday. Mr. Duff's lawyer holds that, although his client's message was not written on one of the company's blanks, the acceptance of the message imposed upon the company all the ordinary responsibilities of prompt and correct transmission and delivery.

— John L. Sullivan was expelled from the Order of Elks, at a meeting of the Grand Lodge, at Louisville, Ky., on May 20. The offence for the expulsion occurred some time ago. While in a Cincinnati restaurant, Sullivan, it is stated, insulted a waitress. He was then a member of Newark, N. J., Lodge of Elks, although a resident of Boston. Charges were preferred against him before the Grand Lodge, and he was expelled. Newark, however, refused to yield to the Grand Lodge, and at once reinstated Sullivan. When the National Convention of Elks began at Louisville, the matter was again brought up and referred to a committee. This committee made a unanimous report in favor of expelling Sullivan. At the full session of the members, which was secret, Newark made a strong fight for Sullivan, but, when the matter came to a vote, was badly defeated, and Sullivan is no longer an Elk. Newark can again refuse to abide by the decision of the Grand Lodge, but, as that would end in the expulsion of Newark, too, Sullivan's fate in the matter is settled.

I repeat that while their marrying may be all right under the British laws, it is viewed in the light of bigamy here. They are not responsible to this country for their acts at London. Should they presume to live here as man and wife, they may at any time be arrested, unless they are re-married."

— Harry La Marr will star next season in a new comedy, "A New England Home," with new scenic effects and a good company. The New England Dramatic Exchange will manage the tour.

— W. R. Nason reports good business for Childs' Comedy Co. and Baby Brass Band. Mr. Childs has written a new song for his daughter, Maude, five years old, in which she impersonates an old woman. She is quite well known through the Far West as a drum and cymbal player.

— Abbott & Teal, the new play producing firm, seem to have struck it rich on their first try. "Niobe," which has just won a Philadelphia success, is to be done at the Boston Museum June 15, for a Summer run. On Aug. 31 it will come to the Bijou Theatre, this city, for an indefinite stay.

— E. M. Slocomb, formerly at H. R. Jacobs' Third Avenue Theatre, this city, is now manager of the Newark, N. J., Billposting Co., and is in the full tide of a prosperous business career. — Milt. and L. M. Boyer wish it understood that they are in no way connected with Martin Boyer's Co. in "Roughing It." L. M. Boyer will not go out next season, while Milt. Boyer will either go out with the new comedy, "A Pair of Tramps," or with his old attraction. The baby Clipper Boyer, now eight months old, is said to be in fine health. Before going Mr. Rogers had engaged a first class company for next season, and his repudiation of his contracts will alter the arrangements of a number of actors and actresses. Minnie Palmer, Mr. Rogers' wife, has been engaged by George Edwardes, of the Gaiety Theatre, London, and it is said that she and her husband are again living together.

J. He is engaged for a spectacular comedy venture in September, and declares that it will be a startling novelty.

— Dore Davidson, is very much alarmed because a play called "The Hand of Fate" is announced to tour the country next season, under Henry Saylor's management. Mr. Davidson asserts that he some time ago copyrighted a drama of that same name, for Ramie Austen. Of course. And a thousand other playwrights could then and can now "copyright" that title or any other title at one dollar per certificate of the Librarian of Congress. There is no occasion for agitation on Mr. Davidson's part. He may retain his title. So may Mr. Saylor. So may the hundred other dramatists who own "Hands of Fate." That is the beauty of our copyright law, where it affects titles. It is so elastic.

— Harry Barrymore, the comedian, who was reported to have made an attempt to take his life, by cutting his throat with a razor, at Portland, Ore., on May 10, emphatically denies the truth of the report, and states that while shaving the razor slipped, making but a slight gash on his neck. From the number of applications received for positions and dates under the new administration, it would seem that "The President" is enjoying a boom that is steadily on the increase. VARIETY AND MINSTRELSY.

Just in the Same Old Way.

I would I were a boy again,
Just in the same old way,
To romp around in snow and rain,
Just in the same old way,
To throw snowballs at grandpa's hat,
Or pinch the tail of our old cat
While she is sleeping on the mat,
Just in the same old way.

I'd like to have a cellar door,
Just in the same old way,
To slide down till my pants get tore,
Just in the same old way,
And yelling over my mishap,
To feel my mother's old trunk strap,
And hear the sound of rap tap slap,
Just in the same old way.

I'd like to tease our old cow brown,
Just in the same old way,
To see her knock the milkmaid down,
Just in the same old way;
An old tin pan I'd like to tie
To Rover's tail, and see him try
To shake it off, as round he'd fly,
Just in the same old way.

I'd like to 'tend the village school,
Just in the same old way,
Be tickled by the teacher's rule,
Just in the same old way,
Then place a pin upon his chair,
And watch him leap into the air,
While silently I'd think, we're square,
Just in the same old way.

I'd like to tease my sister Sue,
Just in the same old way,
When she was talking love with Lou,
Just in the same old way,
And when he'd place, as lovers do,
His arm around the waist of Sue,
I'd holler at him: "I see you!"
Just in the same old way.

Who does not wish he was a boy,
Just in the same old way?
The Spring time of our lives brings joy,
Just in the same old way.
In youth, in manhood and old age,
In battles hard we must engage,
While boyhood days is one bright page,
Read in the same old way.

JOSEPH P. LINK.

HARRY O. SMITH, a clever and facile writer on The Graphic, published at Springfield, Mass., has this to say in a recent number of that bright and breezy weekly: "THE CLIPPER seems to be of the opinion that minstrelsy and burlesque are to wed—a notion not without ground, as is shown by Rich & Harris' announcement for George Thatcher's party next season, which will have quite as much farcial and burlesque as minstrel talent. One thing is certain, there will be few out and out variety companies on the road another year. Rich & Harris, for instance, have done with straight specialty, and will rent the Howard Athenæum name. By the way, speaking of THE CLIPPER, I must say a hearty good word for that staunch sheet, which has started upon a new era of success in its long and honorable career."

NEW YORK CITY.

Last Week Reviewed.—Signs that the period of theatrical dullness approaches were easily discerned in last week's offerings at the local playhouses. There were several novelties, it is true, and most of them met with a fair degree of success; yet the week lacked any aspect of actual brilliancy, notwithstanding one venture had been put forth quite pretentiously and elaborately. Strange to say, it was the most disappointing of the new productions. It was Richard Mansfield's "Don Juan," presented for the first time an any stage May 18, at the GARDEN THEATRE, with the cast as detailed in our last issue. A synopsis of the play appears on another page. Mr. Mansfield's audiences during his new play's inaugural week were of good size, and there is reason to believe that "Don Juan" will attract visitors in fair numbers for a few weeks longer; but it cannot honestly be put on record as a successful effort on Mr. Mansfield's part, either as author or impersonator of the title role. The piece is handsomely staged, and the support is admirable..... The Summer season of German comic opera at TERRACE GARDEN opened brilliantly night of 23, with "Arme Jonathan" ("Poor Jonathan").....A benefit for the Washington Arch Fund was given at the Madison Square afternoon of 19, enlisting the services of a number of excellent professional and amateur theatrical favorites, in a programme that included the one act comedietta, "A Game of Cards," Mr. Jerome's "Fennel," scenes from "The Rivals," and a drawing room entertainment by Richard Mansfield. As Joseph Jefferson, W. J. Florence and Mrs. John Drew were advertised to appear in scenes from "The Rivals," that part of the entertainment was awaited with great interest. The kindliest of welcomes was given to Sir Lucius, Mrs. Malaprop and Fighting Bob, as the favorites made their first appearances. This delightful trio was ably seconded by Viola Allen, Frederick Paulding, George Denham, Joseph Warren and Nellie Lingard. Mr. Mansfield's part of the entertainment consisted of a series of imitations, 'cello and piano players and a trio of Italian opera singers, receiving most clever imitations at his hands. The net receipts were about $1,000. Manager Palmer donated the use of the theatre.....These were the unchanged bills: Rosina Vokes' Co. at DALY'S, "Reilly and the 400" at HARRIGAN'S, "Wang" at the BROADWAY, "The Tar and the Tartar" at PALMER'S, "Apollo" at the CASINO, "The Merchant" at the MADISON SQUARE, "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" at PROCTOR'S TWENTY-THIRD STREET and "The Henrietta" at the UNION SQUARE. Amy Lee was out of the cast of "Reilly and the 400" 18 and 19, Fannie Batcheider taking her place. Rosina Vokes' season at Daly's closed 23.....The ACADEMY, NIBLO'S, METROPOLITAN, LYCEUM, AMBERG, EIGHTH STREET, HERRMANN'S, HARLEM OLYMPIC and HARLEM OPERA HOUSE were dark.....These were the week stands ended 23: Rose Coghlan in a repertory at the GRAND OPERA HOUSE, D. K. Higgins' "Kidnapped" Co. at the PEOPLE'S, Annie Pixley in "Kate" at the FOURTEENTH STREET, Marie Hubert Frohman's "Witch" Co. at the HARLEM COLUMBUS, McKee Rankin's "Canuck" Co. at the WINDSOR and "A Bunch of Keys" at the HARLEM THEATRE. .....Variety held sway, as usual, at TONY PASTOR'S, the LONDON and MINER'S BOWERY and EIGHTH AVENUE.....Hebrew drama continued at the ROUMANIA OPERA HOUSE and the THALIA.....The opening week of the revival of "Ship Ahoy!" at the STANDARD drew audiences of good size.....Monroe's Celebrities in "Aunt Bridget's Baby," at the BIJOU, and John C. Rice's Co. in "A Knotty Affair" at the NEW PARK, have reason to feel gratified with their city welcome. Large audiences ruled at each theatre, and both farces seemed to delight those who viewed them.

MANAGER GUSTAV AMBERG is lying very ill at his apartments in the Belvidere Hotel, suffering with a complaint of the stomach. He was first taken ill May 17, and since then has been confined to his bed and under the constant care of a physician. His physician says that he is in no danger at present, and the only thing to be feared is the setting in of peritonitis. Despite the fact that the season at the Amberg was one long series of well filled houses, Manager Amberg claims that he has not made any money. An enormous company, he says, ate up all his profits. The Muencheners, who were very successful, demanded such a big percentage, he says, that he did not make a cent out of their stay in this country. About a year ago Mr. Amberg's creditors held a meeting at Steinway Hall, at which it was computed that the manager was $70,000 in debt. After much debate, it was decided to give him three years in which to pay. At the close of the present season, some two weeks ago, it was found that the manager was in no better position now to pay than he was a year ago. It looked as if the theatre would pass out of Mr. Amberg's hands, when some of the creditors, who were not very anxious for their money, and a few prominent Germans came together and held a meeting. They decided to attempt to raise a guarantee fund of $50,000, which would insure a continuance of the theatre next season. A committee was appointed to raise the money, consisting of Conrad Feigel, William Steinway, Jesse Seligman, Carl Schurz and Jacob H. Schiff. It was said that the committee had raised $40,000, principally among its own members, and expected to raise the other $10,000 in a day or two. There was a proposition to add a tier of boxes to the theatre and ask a number of wealthy Germans to subscribe for them, but nothing definite has been done in regard to this.

MUCH INTEREST is being manifested in the testimonial to be given to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dacre at Palmer's, Monday afternoon, June 1. The list of attractions, as already announced, includes the Kendals in "A Happy Pair" (their last appearance in America this season), Rosina Vokes in her nautical song, "The Whale" (her last appearance in New York until May, 1892), Rose Coghlan and company in "Nance Oldfield;" J. E. Dodson, of the Kendal Co., in his description of "How Bill Adams Won the Battle of Waterloo;" E. J. Henley in a recitation, Jos. Holland and Fritz Williams in their sketch which made a hit on its first production at the Lyceum recently, and one or two other strong attractions. This bill should draw a crowded house.

AT a meeting of the Madison Square Garden Co., May 22, W. F. Wharton was elected a director, and the officers elected were F. K. Sturgis, president; W. F. Wharton, vice president; W. A. Haines, secretary, and A. Ladenburg, treasurer.

Palmer; first vice president, Louis Aldrich; second vice president, Edwin F. Knowles; treasurer, Frank W. Sanger; secretary, Charles W. Thomas; board of trustees—A. M. Palmer, Louis Aldrich, Edwin F. Knowles, Frank W. Sanger, Charles W. Thomas, Joseph F. Wheelock, Joseph N. Shannon, F. F. Mackay, De Wolf Hopper, Daniel Frohman, Edwin H. Price, Antonio Pastor, Martin W. Hanley, Albert Hayman, Augustus Pitou, H. S. Taylor and Rudolph Aronson.

DORIS' EIGHTH AVENUE MUSEUM.—Manager Doris displayed excellent judgment in producing comic opera at this time, as the weather has been favorable, inducing large audiences to visit the place in order to listen to the fine singing of his company. This week "The Chimes of Normandy" is being presented, with the same competent cast and careful attention to detail noted in the previous productions here. The opera season is likely to continue all Summer, as the success of last season is being renewed with eclat. The people who alternate with the opera company in stage performances includes Sig. Corspini, Dave Roach, Brennon and others. In the museum La Petite Minnetta, in her mysterious cabinet act, Ben Freichmann, ventriloquist; Scheuezerade, fire queen, and the regular attractions are drawing crowds of visitors. Some excitement was created on the museum floor on May 22. One of the competitors in a female beauty contest was shot at by a son of Sergeant John Dunn, of the Twenty-second Precinct. There had been some relationship existing between the two people, Dunn claiming that they had lived together in this city, which she stoutly denied. There were two shots fired, the first into the ceiling and the second point blank at the girl, which, however, inflicted only a slight flesh wound in the arm. Dunn was arrested and held in default of $1,500 for trial at the General Sessions. The wounded girl is known as Carrie Reed, or Carrie Hemming. She was once in the ballet of Barnum & Bailey's "Nero," where Dunn met her.

THE END of the People's season occurs May 30. "Kidnapped" is the closing piece, it being the second week of the play here.

ERNEST SALVATOR brought suit against Rudolph Aronson, in the Eighth District Court, last week, for one year's salary as stage manager, at the rate of $65 a week. The facts elicited by Civil Justice Jerolomon are that Mr. Aronson re-engaged Mr. Salvator, on Oct. 7 last, as stage manager of opera and operetta. When Mr. Salvator came to this city on May 1, from stage managing a Casino road troupe, Mr. Aronson refused to accept his services. Pay day being Tuesday, Mr. Salvator called that day of each week, but received no salary. In his own behalf Mr. Aronson admitted the contract, but claimed he had to discharge Mr. Salvator on April 30 for incompetency. He had watched several performances over which Mr. Salvator had control, and found that the acting was bad, due to a lack of respect for him by the performers, and lack of authority by him over them. Justice Jerolomon reserved his decision.

JOHN M. HICKEY, the theatrical manager, notified the police on May 20 that he had been robbed on the previous night of a gold watch, chain, charm and scarf pin. He had been to the Bijou Theatre, and was on his way up Broadway toward his home, in Thirty-eighth Street, when two men invited him into a saloon at Thirty-seventh Street. He declined, but they walked with him to the corner of Thirty-eighth Street. Suddenly they started to run toward Fifth Avenue, and Mr. Hickey discovered that his jewelry was gone. He attempted the pursuit, but was too late. He valued the stolen articles at $200.

CHARLES H. HOYT, the playwright, left this city for the West on May 20.

JOSEPHINE PLOWS-DAY has been engaged by Charles Frohman to play in New York next season.

MRS. GEORGIE DREW BARRYMORE, who was seriously ill for many months, returned from the West Indies on board the Carribee May 20. Mrs. Barrymore, who went to the Windward Islands for her health, has completely recovered. She left for the home of her mother, Mrs. John Drew, at Philadelphia, immediately. It was during the run of "The Senator" that Mrs. Barrymore was taken ill.

GEORGE P. GOODALE, the widely known and highly esteemed dramatic editor of The Detroit Free Press, has arrived in town for a several months' pleasant sojourn among his theatrical friends and acquaintances.

THIS is the fourth and final week of Stuart Robson's engagement at the Union Square in "The Henrietta." The houses are still quite large. A special matinee will be given May 28 for the benefit of the charity fund of the Confederate Veteran Camp, of this city.

CLOSED this week are Daly's, the Academy of Music, People's, Metropolitan, Star, Eighth Street, Niblo's, Amberg, Herrmann's, Harlem Opera House and Harlem Olympic.

"WANG," by the De Wolf Hopper Opera Co., continues to do well at the Broadway. "The Tar and the Tartar," by the McCaull Opera Co., is also enjoying a fair degree of public favor at Palmer's, while "Apollo" seems good enough to last a long time at the Casino. Terrace Garden, the Grand Opera House and the Harlem Columbus also offer light opera to Summer theatregoers.

"REILLY AND THE 400" runs on with unchanged success at Harrigan's.

"THE MERCHANT" has made a success at the Madison Square, where it is drawing large audiences. It will be continued till July 1.

"SHIP AHOY" entered its second and last week at the Standard, May 25, to a good house.

AT PROCTOR'S, "Mr. Wilkinson's Widows" is retained as the attraction. It is still delighting good sized audiences, and will be continued until late next month.

AT THE BIJOU, the second week of Monroe's Celebrities, in "Aunt Bridget's Baby," opened auspiciously May 25. The farce moves with much more spirit and smoothness now that the company have successfully passed the ordeal of their city debut.

JACOB TANNENBAUM, manager of the Southern circuit, has arrived in town and taken his usual quarters for the Summer. Levi Mayer, who has just closed his season as business manager with Evans and Hoey, will be Mr. Tannenbaum's assistant this Summer, the same as last.

FRANK MCKEE is in this city. "A Trip to Chinatown," which he has handled personally, closed its season May 16. He is now busily engaged in finishing up the booking for the Hoyt & Thomas attractions for next season.

IN a short time hundreds of hands will commence to execute the plans of Rosenfeld Bros., the managers of the Lilliputians, to rebuild the Thalia Theatre, and make out of it a first class house. Carl Rosenfeld has been several weeks in Germany visiting the large cities to make engagements, and many contracts with well known actors and actresses have already been made. The Thalia will be rebuilt from top to bottom, and lighted by electricity, while the stage and its sur

THE pupils of the Lawrence School of Acting will tender their director, Edwin Gordon Lawrence, a benefit at the Berkeley Lyceum Thursday evening, May 28. Among the most prominent pupils may be mentioned Beatrice Atherton, who will appear in an act of "Camille" and "The Hunchback," and Helen Marvin, who will be seen as Anna, in "The Danichefs," and whose arrangements to star next season are already completed. Among others of the ladies and gentlemen who will graduate on this occasion are May Keith, Miss Clarke and Miss Perry, and Messrs. Carmer, Phillips, Lack, Fleming and Davis. In addition to the plays already mentioned, scenes from "Ingomar," "The Merchant of Venice," "Romeo and Juliet," and "The Lady of Lyons" will be given. Mr. Lawrence will tender the graduating class a supper after the performance.

THE third annual entertainment of the Five A's will be held at the Metropolitan Opera House on Thursday afternoon, May 28. The performances are of more than ordinary interest, as the club has a large membership, comprising nearly all the prominent members of the theatrical profession and many of the cleverest of the footlight favorites appear in these merry revels, introducing novel, original and amusing skits and sketches. The amusement committee announce the following as some of the prominent features of the programme: The wonderful child, Little Tuesday, in new recitations and imitations; Sophia Shiffman, prima donna; Della Fox will sing her famous song, "Columbia," with the De Wolf Hopper Opera Co. chorus; the "Transcription of National Airs," by the McCaull Opera Co.—Digby Bell, Wm. Kelly, John Kernell, Frank David, George Melville, Henry V. Donnelly, Eddie Girard, Arthur Ricketts and Charles Wayne. "Red, White and Blue Jeans," a one act travesty, arranged for this occasion by R. F. Carroll, with characters by Charley Reed, William Collier, Ignaccio Martinetti, Frank Lane, Pete Daly, Edwin Stevens and others, and the sensational saw mill scene will be shown with machinery in full view of the audience. The bill will close with the "Five A's Circus," in which the following members of the club will appear as riders, acrobats, freaks, gymnasts, etc.: Jeff De Angelis, "King of the Air;" Harry Booker in his bareback act; George Melville, "King of the Arena," in a dashing bare back exhibition; Frank David, the modern Sampson, in cannon ball act; Arthur Ricketts, Otis Harlan, Eugene O'Rorke, clowns, and last, but not least, the celebrated "Wang" elephant and his trunk, with De Wolf Hopper as ring master and general director of the arenic aggregation. Flowers will not be sold on this occasion, but boutonniers and bouquets will be given away by a bevy of pretty girls, matronized by "Aunt Louise" Eldridge. The entertainment promises to be a big success.

GAIETY MUSEUM.—Manager Bernstein reports good business last week, the Hornbacher Bros., sparrers, being the main attraction. Louis Thiel, who has been in the stock all season, did not appear last week, owing to the death of his wife. This week's bill: Curio hall—Wild Burt and Little Sure Shot, the Mexican Aztec, the mysterious cabinet, Thauma, Mme. Farinie, Prof. Goodman, Mme. Zoe Yara and Campbell's Punch and Judy. Stage—Harry T. Stewart, supported by the stock, in "Jack Marline."

AT A BENEFIT performance given at the New Park Theatre evening of May 24 about $800 was realized for the sick fund of John A. Cameron Lodge, No. 312, A. O. U. W. Walter A. Eytinge, of Rose Coghlan's Co., was stage manager, and among the artists who volunteered their services were Long and Dixon, John T. Sullivan, Harry Brooks, Prof. Allen Latham, Harry Glanfoyie, Marie Singer, Ada Jones, Florence Barry and others.

PROF. R. P. STANTON, an expert in hypnotism, gave an interesting exhibition at the Windsor Theatre Sunday evening, May 24. The audience was of fair size, and seemed well pleased with the entertainment. The programme had the assistance of a lady orchestra.

GRAND MUSEUM.—The management report good business, considering the weather. This week: Curio hall—Walker & Reedie's Royal Marionettes, Prof. Herman (strong man), Master Hilton (juggler), James Bradley's Shadowgraphs, Lillie Ioma (snake charmer) and Montaineo Bros. Lower Theatre—"Uncle Tom's Cabin."

THE sixty-eight stockholders of the Metropolitan Opera House Co. have each received this circular, setting forth the results of the season. It says: "My Dear Sir—Enclosed herewith you have balance sheet of the company and statement showing the result for the year. Your receipts from the opera were not as large as the previous season's, and there was also a falling off of some $20,000 in the amount received from the rentals of the Opera House as compared with the previous year. The result shows a deficit of $54,419.51, provided the amount due from stockholders is paid. The floating debt of the company now amounts to $84,044.48. Of this sum, $25,216 has arisen from the non-payment of boxholders of their assessments. An additional amount of unpaid assessments amounting to $21,112 has been canceled by the acquisition by the company of boxes 50 and 60, reducing the number of stockholders from seventy to sixty-eight. Since 1888 all amounts paid for new scenery, costumes, music and improvements ($63,182.81), have been charged to current expenses. By order of the Board of Directors. EDMUND C. STANTON, Secretary." With this letter was a statement showing that the receipts for the last opera season were $206,220.75, the assessments on stockholders $119,500, and the assessments imposed, $13,495. The amount received for rentals was $44,942. The total expenditures for operatic performances was $374,906.22, or an average of nearly $7,000 for each of the fifty performances. The total expenditure for the year was $511,927.26, and a deficit was $54,419.51. Two boxes, Nos. 50 and 60, have been confiscated for non payment of assessments. The floating debt is increased to nearly $85,000, and the payment of this would necessitate an assessment of $1,500 on each subscriber. It is probable that a new issue of bonds will be made and the bonded indebtedness is already $210,000 above the $600 mortgage.

JUST before the performance of "The Tar and the Tartar" at Palmer's afternoon of May 23, Helen Bertram announced that she would not sing, and resigned the engagement. She gave as her reason for not singing that the management had failed to fulfil a promise made to her. This promise was, she says, that her husband, Sig. Tomassi, was to be leader of the orchestra in place of Adam Itzel Jr., who is to lay down the baton in two weeks. Instead of Tomassi, however, Julian Edwards has been engaged. Josephine Knapp was substituted for Miss Bertram. The manager is negotiating with Lenore Snyder to take Miss Bertram's place for the remainder of the engagement. It was denied that any promise had been made to Miss Bertram. Miss Snyder will come at once to New York.

MINER'S EIGHTH AVENUE THEATRE.—Rose Hill's English Folly Co., under the management of Rice & Barton, are here this week. The company is composed, in the main, of shapely women, who appear in bright and taking sketches and burlesques. Their former city engagements this season have been uniformly successful, and the week's "take" at this house will probably equal that of other engagements here. Next week, Sam Jack's Creole Burlesque Co.

"TOM'S" TESTIMONIAL.—J. Thos. Maguire, the genial and popular treasurer of the Fourteenth Street and Bijou Theatres, was tendered a rousing benefit at the latter house on Sunday night, May 24. The theatre was jammed from top to bottom and hundreds were turned away, thus furnishing flattering evidence of the wide popularity of Manager Rosenquest's right hand man. The audience was an enthusiastic and truly representative one, all being friends and acquaintances of "Tom," as Mr. Maguire is universally called. Over a half a hundred prominent actors and actresses appeared upon the stage in an agreeable entertainment that filled up over three hours of time delightfully. Kate Castleton, A. Mack, John W. Ransone, Kate Davis, George Marion, Joe Ott, J. B. Radcliffe, Adele Frost, Katie Dixon and Esther Williams were among the volunteers. The benefit netted nearly $3,000 for Mr. Maguire. It was the biggest and best testimonial he has ever received.

ROSE COGHLAN will not play at the Star Theatre June 1, as she had intended. All negotiations for her engagement there are off.

MANAGER HENRY J. BELMER states that, owing to serious illness in his family, he is compelled to delay the opening of his Windsor Theatre Summer season two weeks at least. He will send out "The Bulldigher" next season, and that play will also be the attraction at the Windsor week of July 6. The balance of the time at the Windsor, Mr. Belmer says, is advantageously filled by contracts for the production of new plays.

MINER'S BOWERY THEATRE.—Two fair sized audiences welcomed Turner's Gaiety Girls May 25. Next week, Flynn's Gaiety Girls.

WINDSOR THEATRE.—"The Fugitive" opened here May 25 to a fair house. The company is not strong, nor is the piece calculated to meet with much success from intelligent audiences, being weak in plot and action, while there is not a good scene nor situation in its entire composition. The production is under the management of Frank Rich. Following is the cast: John Levitt, Geo. W. Parsons; Squire Stollery, W. H. Gough; Mr. Malyon, Harry Harford; Jasper Raleigh, L. P. Hicks; Crackles, Wiley Williams; Master Corley Corduroy, Emma Lascelles; Silas Carrington, Joe Burggraf; Sergeant Gumbleton, Harry Gilbert; Ruth Raleigh, Eva Selbis; Jennie Kidger, Carrie Ezier; Hester Malyon, Nannie Lewald. This engagement closes the regular season at this house, but an experiment will be tried, June 1, in the engagement of that sterling actor, J. B. Studley, supported by Henrietta Vaders, Mrs. W. G. Jones, Harry Eytinge and others, in "Oliver Twist." Mr. Studley will appear as Bill Sykes and Henrietta Vaders will play Nancy. Manager Murtha states that his season has been the most successful in the history of the house.

H. R. JACOBS' THEATRE.—"Alone in London" opened a week's engagement May 25, and the two performances on that day were well patronized. Wm. De Shetley, as Richard Redcliffe, was effective, and Olive L. Oliver excited the sympathy of the audience by the conscientious portrayal of her sad story. An excellent bit of acting was done by Arda La Croix, who impersonated the crafty Jenkerson. D. Brooks did well in his double role of John Biddlecomb and Charley Johnson. Ida May Blake, as Tom Chickweed, also deserves mention. The rest of the cast is as follows: Spriggins, Geo. B. Githens; Mr. Burnaby, T. C. Medinger; Walter Burnaby, D. V. Wall; Liz Jenkins, Helene Brooks; Biddy Maloney, Mrs. T. C. Medinger; Paul, Little Dorothy. Mr. De Shetley is sole proprietor and manager; J. Banker Phelps is his representative. "Tom Sawyer" next week.

FOURTEENTH STREET THEATRE.—Hallen and Hart brought their merry skit, "Later On," back to town, May 25, for a week's stay. A large audience welcomed the popular comedians. The cast still contains Annie Lewis, Mollie Fuller, Ada Somers, Adele Earrington, John F. McWade, Jos. J. Sullivan and others who have helped to make the hodge podge cheery and entertaining all the season. Harry Hine remains as manager. Next week, Effie Ellsler will produce her new comedy, "Miss Manning."

NEW PARK THEATRE.—"A Knotty Affair" has caught the fancy of the town's lovers of breezy farce, and large audiences applaud Comedian John C. Rice and his splendid coterie of fun makers every night. No definite date has been set for the termination of the engagement, and it is very likely that "A Knotty Affair" will remain in favor well into June.

PRESS AGENT F. R. GILES, of the Bijou and the Fourteenth Street, has returned to town, after a successful trip with "Blue Jeans." Mr. Giles and Manager Benj. Tuthill were CLIPPER callers May 25.

HUGH L. REID (not M. F. Reid) deserves credit for the "Don Juan" scenery at the Garden Theatre. Messrs. Reid and Emens have seldom turned out more artistic work.

LONDON THEATRE.—"The Night Owls" began their last engagement at this house May 25, and succeeded in drawing two good audiences. The company close their tour 30. Next week, Fay Foster's English Gaiety Co. Manager Donaldson sails for Europe 30, on a ten weeks' tour. Treasurer Edwin A. Bull's benefit 21 was a success from the start. The bill was the best the house has ever had. In our business columns will appear Bull's card of thanks and the names of all those who volunteered, or in any way contributed to the benefit performance. The bill ran till long past midnight, and even then all who had volunteered could not appear, on account of the lateness of the hour.

KOSTER & BIAL'S.—Peggy Pryde, the newly imported English character singer and dancer, and the worthy daughter of Jenny Hill, now divides honors with the famous Spanish dancer, Carmencita. Both are stars of the first magnitude in their respective lines, and each has become a sterling favorite with the large cliental of this popular resort. Miss Pryde seems in a fair way to duplicate in America her splendid successes on the other side. Other entertainers on this week's bill include Frank Bush, mimic; Wood and Sheppard, musical comedians; Millie Price-Dow, dancer; the Wood Family, musicians, and others. "Adam's Temptation" is retained as the chief musical feature. Imogene Corner, an agreeable singer and well liked member of the company, retired for a week or so to secure a much needed rest. John Pickel, the genial guardian of the rear portals, now acts as chief property man, and a good and efficient worker he is, too. He is the right man in the right place, as his hosts of friends will readily testify. Business continues highly satisfactory. Manager Bial, by the way, is now on his way to Europe, where he will combine business with pleasure.

TONY ASTOR'S THEATRE.—That pair of clever and widely liked Irish comedians, John and Harry Kernell, appeared together on Monday night, May 25, after a long separation. The talented brothers were warmly welcomed by a large audience. Besides the Kernells, in their highly amusing Celtic sketches, the programme employed the popular comedy duo, Roger and Belle Dolan; Blanche Andrews, a very agreeable vocalist; Fisher and Clark, acrobats; Wilson and Cameron, black face comedians; Frank Moran, wit and mimic; Minnie Lee, the charming singer, and Mathews and Bulger, first class comedians and composers, who introduced some new songs with telling effect. John Hart and A. C. Moreland concluded the finely arranged bill with their very ludicrous sketch, "Wanted, a Nurse," which went like wildfire.

AMY LEE writes to THE CLIPPER: "Will you kindly modify the statement that another actress takes my place at Harrigan's next season. Early this season Isabel Archer was taken very ill, and could not play. Manager Hanley kindly offered me the part, which I accepted, expressly stipulating that it was for this season only. Not one word have I said to Mr. Hanley about a reengagement, so, as I have no place in the company next season, I don't quite see how anyone could occupy it, do you? I have been, and am still, very ill from an abscess on my neck, and recently had a very painful operation performed on it."

A SEASON of English opera was successfully inaugurated at the Grand Opera House May 25, when a very large and appreciative audience heard "Il Trovatore." Louise Natalie sang and acted capitally as Leonora. A. Montegriffo acquitted himself admirably as Manrico, and G. Tagliapietra also did very good work as the Count Di Luna. All concerned in the cast came in for a very warm welcome, special favor being shown to the three above mentioned, whose vocal efforts were repeatedly encored. The minor parts were well filled, the choruses being specially well rendered. "Martha" is underlined for the week commencing June 1, to be followed by "The Bohemian Girl," "Faust," "Carmen" and "Lucia." The company is under the management of T. Henry French and J. W. Morrissey, with Paul Steindorff as director. Sig. Tagliapietra is the stage manager. The roster also includes Mlle. Linette, W. H. Clark and Bella Tomlins.

HUBER'S PALACE MUSEUM.—Business keeps uniformly large, despite any fluctuations in the weather. The commodious exhibition halls are comfortable at all times, and everything tending to the ease, pleasure and convenience of the crowds of sightseers that throng the several departments is carefully looked after by the management. Prof. Johnson, the hypnotist, is the leading feature this week, and his wonderful exhibition of mesmeric force mystifies and amuses large crowds. His many experiments are attended with ludicrous results, generally at the expense of the subjects. The attractions include Emma Schueler, skeleton girl, who is five feet in height and weighs less than half a hundred pounds; Kit-Kit, Congo glass dancer; Ed. Willis, living half man; George, the turtle boy; Sonwell, who fearlessly handles venomous snakes and scorpions; Quatrilli, juggler; Kenyon and others. The Palace Special ty Co., composed of Davis and Jerome, the Reveres, Chas. H. Duncan, Mullally Sisters, H. H. Simons and others give forth comic stage entertainment.

WORTH'S MUSEUM.—The success attained by Manager Worth in producing favorite operas on a generous scale is far beyond even the expectations of that sanguine manager. "The Bohemian Girl," mounted and sung by a competent company during the week just past, filled the cosy theatre at each performance. The closing of this house during any part of the Summer is not in contemplation. The attractions in the museum halls would easily carry the house through the entire year, were there no stage performances. The opera this week is the ever popular "Mascotte," with Louise Searle as Bettina, John Dewey as Lorenzo, J. B. Bradley as Rippo, and a capable cast in the minor roles.

ROBERT B. MANTELL inaugurated his Summer season May 25, when, in the presence of a large and handsome audience at the Lyceum, he presented Albert Roland Haven's five act play, "The Veiled Picture," for the first time in this city. The piece was originally performed by Mr Mantell, 18, at Reading, Pa. The piece is synopsized on another page. This was the cast at the Lyceum: George Felton, Robert Mantell; Herbert Ryland, Porter J. White; Richard Rix, B. T. Ringgold; Marini, Verner Clarges; Fox, Albert Bruning; Marco Corti, Bijou Fernandez; Phebe Fenner, Maije Sheldon; Alice Felton, Charlotte Behrens. Mr. Mantell is now his own manager, and, as this is his first venture at his own risk, it has been looked forward to with keen interest. The play, however, cannot be credited with success. It is skillfully constructed and the language is generally forceful, but the story is not once plausible, nor is there sufficient raison d'etre for the motive. Mr. Mantell impersonated the hero in his usual vigorous and manly way, and was fairly well supported by Miss Behrens, Bijou Fernandez and Albert Bruning.

Harlem.

—The Metropolitan English Opera Co. opened at the Columbus Theatre May 25, in "Rigoletto," to a good attendance. The company is booked for six weeks. The people: Georgine Von Januschowsky, Nina Bertini, Marie Freebert, Eva Walton, Louise Meislinger, Katherine Machnell, Jennie Flower, Payne Clarke, Will Stephens, George Gould, John E. Belton, Otto Rathjens, Leo Stomont, S. H. Dudley, E. N. Knight, Thos. Guise and Joseph Witt. "Rigoletta" will be repeated 27 and 29. "Carmen" 26, 28 and matinee 30, and "The Bohemian Girl" night of 30.

HARLEM THEATRE.—Arizona Joe in "Black Hawks," opened 25. "Wild Violet" will be put on 28. Next week, "A Mexican Romance" will receive its first New York presentation.

OLYMPIC THEATRE.—J. J. Coleman will benefit 30.

HARLEM MUSEUM.—This week's bill: Curio hall—Mons. De Saurin, Andy Johns, Chas. A. Asbury and Samuel Harris, J. W. Nash, John Gaddis, Jeannette, Thos. E. Addy's collection and Herr Wenzel's Punch and Judy. Stage—Geo. and Maude Ricketts, Geo. Scobie, Clint Wilson and Maggie Brevarde, Geo. Bunell and Dan Rankin, J. C. Donovan and Blanche Dupois, St. Julian and Millie Eloise.

DORIS' MUSEUM.—The regular season at this house closed 23. On the lower floor hourly performances are given.

PAVILION.—The place opened 23 with Lottie Gilson, A. O. Duncan, James F. Hoey, the Midgeleys, Beatley and Bently, Eddie Quinn and Ward and Lynch.

THE OPERA HOUSE remains closed.

—Josephine Cameron reports excellent business for her company through this State. Miss Cameron will play the principal Summer resorts and watering places during the heated term, and will close her tour in August.

NEW YORK STATE.

Brooklyn.

—This week marks the close of the season at one or two of our local houses, and it looked May 22 as though another one might have preceded them in darkness unannounced. The sudden enforced ending of the intended six weeks' season of English opera at the Grand, late in the week, left very little time to produce a suitable attraction for the current week, but Col. Morris, equal to the occasion, announced 23 "The Witch" for 25. Although the end of the season is near, there are plenty of patrons for good shows, and the appearance of the various openings 23 proved that the current attractions were good ones.

PARK THEATRE.—"The Senator" opened 25 to full seats. The Lyceum Theatre Co. ended a good week 23. Next week, "The Dazzler."

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Considering the predicament in which Manager Morris found himself 22, and the short time at command in which to engage and announce a fresh attraction, the good turnout which greeted Marie Hubert-Frohman, in "The Witch," was a gratifying surprise. The play has been seen during the season at an Eastern District and at an uptown theatre. The fiasco of grand English opera last week was no fault of the local management, whose action in the matter was entirely proper and whose successful endeavor to quickly substitute another attraction was worthy of the appreciation of our theatregoers.

STAR THEATRE.—Manager Holmes makes a departure to variety for the current week, and the stage is held by a combination headed by Haines and Vidocq. A large attendance applauded the first performance 25. As this is the last week that the well known team will work double, their numerous Brooklyn friends will undoubtedly fill many seats at the Star during the week. The full company includes Ed. Rentz, Johnny Carroll Winstanley and West, Quaker City Quartet, Larry and Lizzie Smith, John E. Drew, Andy Hughes, McBride and Walton, Alice Thompson, Lizzie Mulvey and Belle Clifton. Corinne played at this house last week, which is equivalent to saying that business was at high water mark for six days.

HYDE & BEHMAN'S THEATRE.—Sam T. Jack's Creole Burlesque Co., which was seen earlier in the season at the other end of the city, made its first bow to a down town audience 25, and gave a show worthy the good attendance which witnessed it. The Lilly Clay Burlesquers closed to fair results 23.

AMPHION.—The members of the Masonic fraternity are given an opportunity of increasing the fund for repairing the Greenpoint Masonic Temple by patronizing the Amphion this week. Manager Knowles has given the use of the house the entire week for this purpose. "Fabio Romani" is the attraction. The opening was to a large house. Rose Coghlan will appear at Lee Ottolengui's benefit June 2.

NOVELTY.—Gus Hill's World of Novelties furnished amusement for a crowded house May 25. The house will close for the season 30, when the company also finish their tour.

GRAND THEATRE.—The usual big house witnessed the opening performance of a burlesque and specialty bill here 25. Next week the proceeds of the house will go to the employes. During the Summer the house will be altered inside and out. The front will be torn down and rebuilt, and the interior will be redecorated throughout.

HUBER & GERHARDT'S CASINO.—People this week: Prof. Don Lorio and Family, Walter and Plimmer and Kittie Burke, Fannie Reynolds, Nellie Collins and Minnie Schult.

FELTMAN'S TIVOLI.—The last bill of the season presents Pickert and Mayon, Edith Mason, Annie Riley, Rose Hall, Jessie Carll, Bijou Russell and Minnie Selles.

NOTES.—The six weeks' season of English opera, at the Grand Opera House, by the Kruger English Opera Co., inaugurated 18, came to a sudden and lamentable close 22 at the end of the second act of "Il Trovatore." The demand of Sig. Guille, the tenor, for his salary, and the inability of Mr. Kruger to satisfy the demand, precipitated the matter. It seems the company had made an endeavor to get time at another Brooklyn theatre, and, failing, had prevailed upon Col. Morris to give them the desired season, they to give up first money to a specified amount. The engagement of Sig. Guille called for the payment of his salary before the commencement of the performance, which contract had been observed each evening. Mr. Kruger being able to make the payment 22, Mr. Guille offered to sing through two acts, with the understanding that payment would be forthcoming. Col. Morris was appealed to, but, as his guarantee had not been made good, he could hardly see matters in the desired light. There being no alternative, Treasurer Sammis explained matters to the audience, and dismissed them with the information that their tickets would be redeemed 23. The company was a capable one, and the opera was well staged. The result is generally attributed to the bad management of Kruger & Lott.....William Byles, a stage carpenter, is in jail in this city, having been arrested on a charge of abandonment preferred by his wife, a resident of Brooklyn.....Everything promises successful results for the approaching benefit performances for Treasurers Richardson, of the Park, Ottolengui, of the Amphion, and Henry W. Behman, of Hyde & Behman's.....Cora Tanner will produce her new play, "Will She Divorce Him?" at the Park Theatre, week of June 8.....Will Wilson, late of the "Yon Yonson" Co., has signed to play Dr. Bill, in the comedy of that name, next year.....Charles Lamb, for the past few years with Barry and Fay, has engaged to play next season with "Mr. Barnes of New York."

Buffalo.

—Most of the theatres are closed this week, and the Buffalo season is practically ended. H. R. Jacobs' houses have a few more weeks' booking, however. The big local event of the year here, the May Festival, closed gloriously May 23. The Boston Symphony Orchestra, a chorus of six hundred and numerous soloists acquitted themselves proudly, and the guarantors will have but five per cent. deficit to meet. The Kendals, at the Academy, did not suffer from the festival much, and there were few, if any, seats left at their four performances. Spenser's "Little Tycoon," at the same house early in the week, scored well and closed its season at Rochester, N. Y., 23. The Rentz-Santley Co. had excellent patronage at the Court Street throughout the week. The Summer season of opera by the Carleton Co. commences in about three weeks at the Star Theatre, and will be the last engagement under the auspices of the owners, the Messrs. Levi.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC.—The Bostonians, in "Robin Hood," June 2. Mr. and Mrs. Kendal departed May 23.

CORINNE LYCEUM.—The Spenser Opera Co. June 4-6.

COURT STREET THEATRE.—"Keep It Dark" the week of June 1. Rentz-Santley Burlesque Co. finished May 23.

SHEA & SCHEU'S MUSIC HALL.—Yank Hoe and Omene proved attractive last week, and are re-engaged for the present week. Also appearing: Davenport and Wilson, Maude Beverly and others. Improvements with the hammer and brush are rife at this cosy place.

ROBINSON'S MUSEE AND THEATRE.—This week, Chas. R. Owen starts his fourth week of fasting, with twenty pounds loss of flesh. Also here this week: Big Hattie, Nora Owen (midget), Col. Rickett Nelson and Col. Fisher. Stage—Till's Marionettes, Al. Wilson, Lillie Beach, the Bryants, York Anderson, Willie Gauze and Eclipse Quartet. Managers Robinson & McFadden are busily preparing for the Summer opera season here, the former being a weekly visitor to your city.

NOTES.—The Boston Symphony Orchestra closed their Spring tour here 23.....Blanche Callahan, Julia Hurley, Ellbu Spencer and Prof. Hart are home for the Summer.....C. V. Morton, of the Morton Boyer Comedy Co., has a benefit at Concert Hall 26.....John H. Meech is wanted to manage a prospective new theatre at Rochester, N. Y., and is entertaining the project.....Harry Hart, author and actor, is the merry boniface of a Summer hotel at Preston, Ont.....Geo. Hager, Louise Hofer and Chas. Hager are rehearsing in New York, preparatory to a Pittsburg engagement.....Geo. Cooper, manager of the Medina Opera House, was a Buffalo visitor last week.....Col. Cooper, the giant, is at his home here.....The Sheriff levied on the cyclorama "Battle of Lookout Mountain" last week, and the building will be converted into a rink.....Terry Ferguson has opened another variety hall here.....Manager Louis E. Levi is visiting Boston, Mass.

Troy.

—At the Griswold Opera House, nothing has been seen for a fortnight past, and nothing is booked.

RAND'S OPERA HOUSE.—Local amateur entertainments for charitable purposes occasionally. The Troy Writers' Club, a new organization of newspaper men, has concert by local talent June 1. Fordie Livingstone Russell, of Troy, pupil of the Lyceum School of Acting, New York, gives an original monologue on Shakespeare's "Seven Ages of Man" June 8, 9, for the benefit of the St. Christina Home for Sick Children.

GAIETY THEATRE.—Manager Hearn closed this house May 23, after a good week's business, by the Rose Hill Folly Co. It was quite a surprise, as the nights are cold and the theatre is on the river bank, with a dozen windows and skylights, and could be run all Summer. The season has lasted thirty-six weeks and been profitable. Nearly all the road variety combination and burlesque companies that book in vaudeville houses have been here, and many are booked to return. The next season opens late in August. The house has been kept very clean and orderly. John Dwyer, the popular assistant manager, has resigned his position, and will be at Baby Elephant, Coney Island, this Summer.

Syracuse.

—At the Wieting Opera House, the Thomas Orchestra were to have given a matinee concert May 20, but, owing to a railroad accident, the company could not reach here in time. The regular season will close with Mr. and Mrs. Kendal, May 27, 28, when H. W. Stimpson, who has been acting manager for the past season, will retire, to assume the general management of the Wieting estate.

H. R. JACOBS' OPERA HOUSE.—Last week, "Lost in New York" proved a paying attraction. The season is practically ended. Representative C. H. Plummer and Treasurer Frank Hennessy have been re-engaged for next season. The Bostonians June 4.

THE IRON PIER PAVILION will reopen for the Summer season May 25, under the management of Harlan & Rawlins, with the Primrose Quartet, Shepard Sisters, Mabel Carver and Nellie St. John.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia.

—With the closing of the majority of the local houses the Summer season begins. The shutters of the Walnut were put up May 23, after a fortnight's run of "Niobe," which scored one of the few genuine local hits of the season, and which has a long and successful career before it. The season at the Walnut will be resumed early in the Summer. At the Kensington, the season closed 23 with "Keep It Dark," which came in for a week of good business. Before the Kensington is reopened the interior will be transformed and many other improvements made. The supplementary season at Carncross' Opera House, during which Kellar occupied the house with fair success, was terminated 23. The doors will open again in the latter part of August, minstrelsy and local burlesque forming, as usual, the entertainment. The company has been almost entirely engaged by Manager Carncross. The National, where a vaudeville company headed by Mrs. Tom Thumb, found large audiences last week, wound up the season 23. The house will reopen Aug. 15 with "My Jack." Webber's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" Co. was seen at the People's Theatre last week to moderate audiences. The lights were extinguished 23, but will be turned on June 1, when the Summer season will be inaugurated with Bristo's equestrian horses. During the Summer season prices will be cut down to a scale ranging from fifteen to fifty cents. This leaves but eight local theatres open during the current week. Of these it is probable that the Park, Grand Opera House, Bijou and Ninth and Arch Museum will be the only ones to continue throughout the Summer season.....Those interested in local theatricals have already ceased looking backward on the season just expired, and are speculating on the rumored increase next season in the list of theatres here. There were twenty houses last season, and including the possibilities, there will be twenty-six next. Of the six additions, the Empire and Kellar's Egyptian Hall are practically certainties. The "rumors" are a new theatre at Frankford, one on Germantown Avenue, and one in West Philadelphia, and a theatre for colored actors at Twelfth and Pine Streets. The West Philadelphia house is the most probable of these rumors. According to report it is to be on Chestnut Street and in a large, new hotel building..... Of the houses at present in existence, two have a doubtful future. One of these is the Casino, which, for obvious reasons, cannot continue much longer on its present course, although the management has made no public announcement touching its future. The other is the Girard Avenue Theatre, Manager Matt B. Snyder having given out no bookings for next season. It was rumored that George D Cox, dramatic editor of The Inquirer and Capt. George R. Zimmerman, brother of Manager J. Fred Zimmerman were endeavoring to secure control of the theatre, but Mr. Cox gives a denial of the report. And now for the bill of fare for the current week:

PARK THEATRE.—Manager Fleishman's first Summer season of opera at the Park has opened so auspiciously that much of the uncertainty as to the success of the enterprise has been dissipated, and present indications are towards a prosperous season. The revival of "Nanon," with a capable cast and excellent setting, found liberal appreciation among local theatre goers. This week, "Erminie" is revived by the Pauline Hall Opera Co.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Manager Kelly's Summer opera season was inaugurated 25 by the J. C. Duff Opera Co., in "Dorothy." Cappa's Seventh Regiment Band, which last week occupied the house, gave entertainments to good sized audiences. The engagement was somewhat of an innovation here, but it is likely that the requests of his gratified patrons will induce Manager Kelly to embrace the earliest opportunity to repeat it. The J. C. Duff Opera Co. is booked for two weeks. Then, June 8, the season of grand opera is opened by the Gustave Hinrichs American Opera Co., who will hold the boards throughout the Summer months.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Bryant & Richmond's "Keep It Dark" appeared 25, and their engagement winds up the season at Manager Jermon's popular house. It has been the Lyceum's banner season, and the prosperity is entirely due to the fact that Manager Jermon appreciated what his patrons wanted and gave it to them. During the Summer months the Lyceum will be refitted with silk plush upholstering, mirrors and new scenery.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—The Fay Foster Co. began a week 25. Last week the Henry Burlesque Co. enjoyed good business. A house troupe June 1-6.

SOUTH STREET THEATRE.—"Oliver Twist" was revived 25 by the house stock company. "The Black Flag" was fairly well patronized last week.

BIJOU.—The Gaiety Opera Co., after a stay of thirty-four weeks, closes its second season here 30, going to Keith's Gaiety and Bijou, Boston. The excellent work of this company has contributed largely to the phenomenal success of the Bijou, and recognizing this, Managers Keith & Albee tender the entire company, principals and chorus a benefit during the whole of the current week. "The Mascot" and "The Baron" form the operatic bill. In the variety bill are the American Four, John B. Wills, Herbert and Mack, Boris Selkas, Harry and Bob Hanson, Dolly Howe, Donavan and Albright, Tony Williams, John and Nellie McCarthy, and Shepherd and Whiting. Crowded houses prevailed last week.

CASINO.—"The Little Duke" is continued this week by the Casino Opera Co. Light business still prevails.

NINTH AND ARCH MUSEUM.—Manager Bradenburgh makes no announcement of the closing of his house, declaring that he will keep it open as long as his patrons desire. As business shows no signs of decreasing, it is probable that the season at the Museum is still in its prime. In addition to the usual array of curios, there is specialty entertainment galore this week. The Georgia Minstrels, including Julius Johnson, Walter Addis, Robert Lukens, Billy Collender and Sam Lucas, present an interesting bill. Clay's All Star Specialty Co. makes its first appearance at the Museum. The people: Otis Shattuck and Georgie Blake, Wills and Adams, Ed. Rogers, Gus Carmanelli, Weston Bros., Lillie Hall and the Imperial Japanese Troupe.

NOTES.—At the Walnut and Park Theatres Manager Fleishman has filled all dates for next season.....James O'Neill writes to E. J. Swartz, of this city author of "The Envoy," that he intends to star in that play next season.....Ethel Lynton has resigned from the Casino Opera Co.....W. H. Sherwood, the courteous and efficient assistant manager of the Lyceum, will be tendered a benefit 29.....The Girard Avenue Theatre will be reopened June 8, by Fillot & Granger, for a season of comic opera by the Ideal Opera Co.....Lt. L. Reid, of New York, is painting the asbestos drop curtain for the New Empire Theatre. W. Fetters and Arthur Wright will paint the scenery.....Manager Albee has engaged Carrie Tutein as a permanent member of the Gaiety Opera Co, which she joined 25.....An exemplified copy of letters of administration granted to Edwin Booth on the estate of his sister, Rosalie A. Booth, was admitted to record 22 in the office of the local register of wills. The petitioner averred that the next of kin were Edwin T. Booth, 16 Gramercy Park, New York; Joseph A. Booth, M. D., a brother, Long Branch; Marion R. E. Douglass, a niece; Junius B. Booth, Sidney Booth, Creston Clarke and Wilfred Clarke, nephews, and Asia Clarke Morgan and Adrienne Clarke, nieces, both residing in England.

NEW JERSEY.

Newark.—This week virtually ends the season at most of the theatres here. At Miner's last week, Kate Claxton did a fair business, the weather being too warm for large houses. This week, Fanny Davenport. Great things are anticipated, and doubtless the realization will not be disappointing, as the house was crowded on the first night, May 25. June 10, Col. W. M. Morton will be tendered a benefit.

H. R. JACOBS'.—The season closed here May 23. "Under the Ga-light," which also closed, was the attraction, and the business was not unusually large.

GRAND OPERA HOUSE.—Last week "Neck and Neck" gave satisfaction, and business is on the increase. This week, "East Lynne," dramatized by Haunie Ingham, and entitled "Remorse," will be produced by the stock, which has been strengthened by the addition of Edith Stuart, Adelaide Obey, Marie Mortimer, Little Addie Stuart, Stuart and Master Walter. Next week, "The Black Flag." On May 28 the Clothing Clerks' Association of Newark will receive a benefit. June 5, Joe Seder, resident manager of H. R. Jacob's Theatre, will be given a benefit at this house.

WALDMANN'S.—Annie Hart's Brilliants played to big houses week ending May 23. This week, the London Gaiety Girls will close the season at the house, which, by the way, has been one of unvarying success.

BIJOU.—This week; Alice Williams, May Morgan, Greek George, Max Luttbeg, Capt. John Graham, Harry Williams and Annie West, Prof. Davis and Chas. Heywood.

GLOBE.—This week: Rosa Wentworth, Maude Elliott, Tilly Girard, Fanny Simpson, and J. W. Dunn.

CASINO.—Kitty Peters remains another week. New faces: Mabel Rice, Louisa Ainsley, and Alma St. Alva.

GAIETY.—This week: The Lloyd Sisters, Maude Develion, Mr. McElroy, and Mr. Brown.

NOTES.—The benefit tendered Chas. Whiterack, Wm. Wolf and Thos. Hanlon, at Waldmann's, 22, was a success in every particular. The theatre inside was decorated handsomely with flags and banners, and the audience, which was packed in like matches, joined in the songs and had a good time generally. The programme was long, and included such people as Walter Plimmer, Kitty Burke, Al. Bellman, Sato, Florence French, Johnston, Elano and Bently, Annie Hart, Daly and Devere, Davenport Bros., Frank White, Wm. Payne, Jewell Bros., Lee Siaters, Fields and Hanson, Andy Hughes, McBride and Walton and Hilton. Near the close of the performance Chas. Norton and Mike Leary appeared and sparred four rounds. Delegations from the Newark Lodge of Elks, Passaic Boat Club, Eagle Glee Club, Ten Strike Bowling Club and the Court House officials were present.....Another amusement resort will shortly be added to Newark's list under the name of The Garden of the Four Seasons, which will probably open about June 10.....Joe Seder informs me that he has severed his connection with H. R. Jacobs, and intends opening a new house here next season. He says work will be commenced on it shortly, that it will be on Washington Street and that the seating capacity will be about 1,400.

Hoboken.—At Cronheim's Theatre, the attendance continues fair. Week of May 25: The Bland Sisters, Herbert Crowley, Lotta Daley, Harry Thompson, Barney Mullilly, Frank Cotton and his donkeys, Wood Sisters, Barbara Milton and Emma Weston.

KNICKERBOCKER.—This house is catering to quite a German contingent. The talent comprise both English and German. Adolp Popper is manager, and reports business satisfactory.

NOTES.—The Palisade Amusement Co. are making strenuous efforts to get everything in readiness for their opening, which has now been postponed until the middle of June. The undertaking is a gigantic one, and the enterprising investors should receive creditable returns for their nerve. Rufe Williams will be the stage machinist.....Manager Geo. Harrison has made an offer to Manager H. R. Jacobs to secure his house for a short Summer season. The outlook is favorable. Mr. Harrison has also brought suit against the "Kidnapped" management for money due him.....Manager W. S. Moore, of the disbanded Imperial Opera Co., is confined to his room, a severe sufferer with erysipelas, which has settled in his face. His wife, Irene Santella, who was to join Kiralfy, is also very sick.....Hoboken Lodge of Elks May 6 elected the following officers: Charles Kaufman, E. R.; Eugene Kernans, E. L. K.; James F. Hammon, E. L. K.; Thomas Carlton, E. L. K.; Thomas F. Hatfield, secretary; James Brown, treasurer; Frank Flynn, esquire; Daniel Murphy, I. G.; Edward Price, Tyler; Louis C. Phillibert, Paul J. Taylor and Frank M. McDonough, trustees.....Manager Cronheim, having fifty feet of ground (front) which he can easily spare, will shortly commence the erection of two five story flat houses.....A German variety performer known as Christine Adlersatron, recently married to William Haug, a musician, was arrested for bigamy 20.

Jersey City.—The Academy opens week of May 25 with Susie Howard, in "Nell, the Waif," followed 25-30 by Gus Williams and John Kelly in "U and I." It also marks the closing of the regular season at this house. Business with "Uncle Tom" was fair.

CENTRAL THEATRE.—Maley and McBride, in "Muldoon's Picnic" with the following people: The Pendys, Kennett and Matthews, Blanche Walters and La Petite Mabel. Next week a company headed by Little Chip. Business continues good.

NOTES.—Machinist John Langabee and Doorkeeper Harry Crawford will summer at Greenwood Lake, N. Y. The customary invitations have been extended to the boys.....Ellis Henderson and Manager Frank Henderson, as soon as the Academy closes, will retire to their country home at Long Branch, N. J.....Milt Barlow and his wife join Kennedy's "White Slave" next season.....Both of Webber's' U. T. C. Cos. closed their season May 23, one at Philadelphia and the other here.....A kick having been made by some of the good people at the London Gaiety paper, and a suggestion to appeal to the police for suppression, a word to the visiting manager is sufficient.

Trenton.—At Taylor's Opera House, "Pinafore" was creditably put on May 20, 21, by amateurs, under the direction of Manager Harry Taylor. Robert Mantell 23 in "A Veiled Picture" had light business. This was the last dramatic event of the season. The house will be closed by Gilmore's Band 29.....The wife of William Martin, of Primrose & West's Minstrels, was buried here last week. She was formerly Fannie Buckham and a non professional.....Trenton Lodge, No. 105 B. P. O. E., are raffling off the handsome diamond studded Elks' badge, presented to the late Charles White by the New York Lodge. The proceeds are for Mrs. White, who has re atives here.....E. F. Sullivan and Rose Stahl are home for a few days, and have a handsome offer from Lillian Kennedy for next season.

THE NEWEST PLAYS.

Sketch of the Plot of Richard Mansfield's Version of "Don Juan."

Richard Mansfield's four act play, "Don Juan, or the Sad Adventures of a Youth," was performed for the first time on any stage May 18, at the Garden Theatre, this city, as reviewed in our last week's issue. Dramatic, musical and farcical use has so long and so frequently been made of the old Spanish legends in which Don Juan figures, that a recount of the various stage versions of the story is of no particular value at this moment. Mr. Mansfield sets Don Juan down in Seville at the beginning of the story, living in his father's house and attended by his preceptor, Guzman, and his faithful servant, Leporello, who lies for him and attends him in his sentimental adventures, after the most approved fashion of the old Spanish servant. Lucia, the pretty ward of Don Juan's father, is a member of the household, and she, as a matter of course, is in love with the handsome and dashing youth who has grown up beside her. But Don Juan has been hunting afield. His father and mother, in lively remembrance of their own varied youthful experiences, have done everything in their power to keep their son in ignorance of the passion of love and its eccentricities, but the youth has eaten of the tree of knowledge, nevertheless, and has long ago found his way beyond the domestic circle. Don Alonzo, the Duke of Navarro, comes to Don Juan's father to say that his youthful and beautiful wife has run away, and that he believes Don Juan is responsible for her flight. The startled parents insist that Don Juan settle all difficulties at once by marrying Lucia; but the proud girl refuses to wed him without a protestation of love on his part. In the midst of this embarrassment, the Duke De Navarro's elderly sister comes to claim from Don Juan the fulfilment of his vows to her, and the much beset youth, attacked on all sides, starts out on his travels. The scene of the story is transferred to a roadside inn at Saragossa, where Don Juan arrives with Leporello, and declares his passion and admiration for every pretty girl he meets. He is followed by Lucia, disguised as a page, who hears these declarations with a mingling of girlish temper and anguish. Don Juan further encounters Donna Julia, the wife of the Duke of Navarro, by accident, however, and this meeting brings on the more serious interest of the play. The Duke discovers the meeting, attaches to it the fullest possible significance, and, in the dramatic scene that follows, Don Juan is forced into a defiance of the older man, who refuses a personal encounter, but faithfully promises retaliation. Donna Julia, the wife, retires with Laura to the "Cloister of the White Ladies," and hither Don Juan comes in response to a message sent at the command of the Duke De Navarro. Don Juan is trapped and surrounded, and although he demands the opportunity to fight for his life with the Duke or with three men, he falls into the hands of the hired soldiers of the enraged husband, and is fatally wounded.

"A Knotty Affair."

This farce comedy, by Herbert Hall Winslow, was originally acted at H. R. Jacobs' Theatre, Hoboken, N. J., May 4, and received it New York christening 18, at the New Park. The first act opens in the composing and editorial room of The Boonville Vindicator, of which Wilhelm Van Keuren, alias Jay Proctor Knott, is editor. Van Keuren has changed his name for no very serious offence, and the genuine Knott has assumed the former's name, simply because he desired a change. On this fact hangs the fortune of the play. The second act opens in New York City, and the scene represents two apartments in the Sunset Flat. Here is where all the characters appear and do their several specialties. Act three, scene one, is an anteroom adjoining the hall, where a kermiss is in progress. Nothing very startling takes place here, excepting the explosion of a keg of dynamite, when the scene changes to the grand hall of the kirmess, an elegant and elaborate set. A gavotte, new in movement and style, is executed by all the characters, and several specialties are again introduced, winding up the farce somewhat abruptly. John C. Rice, as J. Proctor Knott, played the part with a German dialect, labored zealously and kept matters on the move. Chas. J. Ross and Mabel Fenton presented an artistic act; Gus Frankel was funny, and Little Bessie Clayton gave two classical dances that were very creditable. Everybody worked hard, were dead letter perfect and dressed superbly. As a matter of record, the only short dress worn in the play was by Sallie Cohen. Perhaps this farce marks the coming of the new era. The cast:

"The Veiled Picture."

Albert Roland Have's domestic drama, "The Veiled Picture," was acted for the first time on any stage May 18, at the Academy of Music, Reading, Pa. On 25 it was introduced to New York by Robert B. Mantell (for whom it was written), at the Lyceum Theatre. Mr. Mantell impersonates George Felton, an American artist, who, while a student, visited Rome, and, during a hallucination caused by a fever, murdered a room mate, whose assumed name was Arthur Blake. No one knew of the murder save another room mate and friend, Herbert Ryland. Blake is supposed to have committed suicide, and the friends return to America. The first act discloses George Felton a prominent New York artist, happily married to Blake's sister, whom he does not know as such. The Italian consul is the executor of his wife's father, and as there was suspicion of foul play in young Blake's death, he had promised an investigation, and is encouraged by the wife. She employs a shrewd detective, who goes to Rome, and, after being convinced that Blake was murdered by one of his room mates, he returns with a sketch of the deed he has found in the room of the traged

ADDRESSES OR WHEREABOUTS NOT GIVEN. ALL IN QUEST OF SUCH SHOULD WRITE TO THOSE WHOM THEY SEEK, IN CARE OF THE CLIPPER POST OFFICE. ALL LETTERS WILL BE ADVERTISED ONE WEEK GRATIS. IF THE ROUTE OF ANY THEATRICAL COMPANY IS SOUGHT, REFER TO OUR LIST OF ROUTES ON ANOTHER PAGE. WE CANNOT SEND ROUTES BY MAIL OR TELEGRAPH.

THEATRICAL.

PHOTOGRAPH COLLECTION.—The name is unfamiliar to us. Possibly she is an actress, but we are not certain. We try to remember all about fifteen or twenty thousand actors, actresses, agents, managers, etc., but once in a while the name of one—or two—may slip us. Can you blame us?

RAPHAEL.—They are not related.

HAYES.—Write to Joseph A. Ott, of Lydia Thompson's Co., as per the instructions at the head of this column.

WOULD BE COMEDIAN.—You say you "know we advise young men not to follow the stage." Why, then, come to us with your case, which in no way differs from all the others that are submitted to us? We will not, and cannot encourage you, because we believe your chances are slim. We also do not wish to recommend any special instructor in stage dancing, singing, elocution, etc. Use your own judgment and discretion.

MRS. F. B. W., Geneva.—See answer to "F. W."

INQUIRER, St. Louis.—No. 12 West Twenty-eighth Street, this city.

H. P. F., Haywards.—Both may be addressed in our care as per the notice at the head of this column.

P. O. S., Brooklyn.—1. Submit it for approval to any of the music publishers who advertise in THE CLIPPER. If they like it, you will probably have no difficulty in securing its publication. 2. Until you can bring proof of your experience, ability, etc., it will probably be difficult to secure engagements here.

S. W. C., Wilmina.—Address Peck & Snyder, 126 Nassau Street, this city.

MISS M. H., Chicago.—See the notice at the head of this column, and also carefully read our theatrical correspondence from week to week. A company is soon to produce that piece in this city.

A. S. I.—Take lessons in vocal culture, we should say. We have never heard of any medicine that will "make a singer."

J. A. P., Plainfield.—From $30 to $75 a week, according to the degree of daring, skill, etc., in the act. There is no average salary.

P. W.—See the notice at the head of this column. A "notice" such as you mention is properly advertising matter. See rates above.

GEO. H. L., Cleveland.—1. We do not honestly think your scheme safe or wise. Your youth and lack of experience are almost fatal obstacles. 2. We therefore cannot conscientiously advise you to run yourself into debt. 3. See answer to No. 1.

C. M. H., Toronto.—It is the same Mr. F.

J. N. R., Grand Island.—That feat has never been accomplished to our personal knowledge.

O. H. K., Kansas City.—We do not know who owns that play now. Write to T. Henry French, West Twenty-third Street, this city. He may be able to enlighten you.

D. D.—We have no record of any play of that name at at the theatre you mention. It is fair to presume, therefore, that it never was produced there.

W. H. R., Rockford.—You had better advertise in our columns for what you want. You will probably receive applications from a number of manufacturers.

J. W., McGregor.—They are with that company.

F. P., Topeka.—1. All the actresses you name are still on the stage, though not all of them are engaged just at present. See the notice at the head of this column. 2. No charge is made for any information imparted through this column.

R. L. K., Richmond.—1. Chiefly to attend to the advertising and all newspaper work. 2. No remuneration, generally. 3. We do not know of any. We do not need one, and that suffices us. 4. Make an application. 5. No. 6. Yes.

MRS. A. G., Philadelphia.—See the notice at the head of this column.

CARDS.

A. M. C., Syracuse.—B was correct in his claim, according to your statement.

S. R., Baltimore.—You were not playing poker when you "rung in" the joker. Such rank abortions of the true game are not recognized by good poker players. Settle the dispute among yourselves.

J. K., Milwaukee.—Yes. D must show his entire hand. Both the caller and the called must show their full hands.

CANTON SPORTING CLUB.—A wins, his high so determining.

M. R. P., Newburg.—1. You can score two only. It was simply a euchre. 2. No answers by mail or telegraph.

J. W. D., Savannah.—1. No one was entitled to it after B passed out. The age never transfers. C must make the first bet. 2. No replies by mail or telegraph.

E. S. S., Cincinnati.—A was wrong in his claim. An assisted cannot go alone, unless it is specially agreed to play the "assisting" game.

DAN D., New Swansea.—D could not properly go alone. That right properly belongs solely to the player who may become responsible for the trump by ordering it up, making it, or taking it up.

RING.

F. J. K., Denver.—John L. Sullivan and Paddy Ryan fought with bare knuckles, for the championship of America, at Mississippi City, Feb. 7, 1882, and afterwards fought with gloves at San Francisco.

M. L., Providence.—John L. Sullivan and Jake Kilrain fought, according to the regular rules of the prize ring at Richburg, Miss.

CONSTANT READER, San Diego.—The fight between Sullivan and Kilrain was governed by the London P. R. rules. Sullivan won.

P. W., Cincinnati.—Send to Ed. James, whose address is in our business columns.

B. F. G., Burlington.—1. He would have to defend the title or forfeit it. 2 Certainly.

FAIRMAN, Detroit.—All bets on the result of the glove fight between Corbett and Jackson are off, the fight having been stopped by the referee.

F. G. K., Chicago.—The encounter between Jim Corbett and Jake Kilrain at New Orleans, La., Feb. 17, 1890, was a glove contest limited to six rounds, Jake undertaking to knock the Californian out in that time.

T. M.—1. The bet on the result of the fight is off. 2. As the fight lasted more than fifteen rounds, A loses.

BASEBALL, CRICKET, Etc.

A. S., Washington.—The New York team closed the championship season of 1889 at Cleveland, where they defeated the Cleveland Club, Oct. 3, 4 and 5, by the respective scores of 9 to 0, 6 to 1 and 5 to 3.

J. J. D.—You lose. The New York Club was scheduled to play May 20 in the West.

F. A. V., Philadelphia.—1. The twenty-two inning game between the Tacoma and Seattle teams on May 16 last is the longest on record between professional clubs, and has only been exceeded once, and that in the twenty-four inning exhibition game on May 11, 1877, between the professional team representing Manchester, N. H., and the Harvard College nine. 2. The eighteen inning game Aug. 17, 1882, between the Providence and Detroit teams, of the National League, is the longest championship contest on record. 3. Three games of nineteen innings each have been played between professional teams, including two in which the score stood a tie at the finish.

C. E. S., Boston.—1. E. N. Crane, the baseball player, has the record of throwing a cricket ball 128yds. 10½in. Jan. 5, 1889, at Melbourne, Australia. 2. The largest total score in one inning in America is the 418 runs made by the Germantown Club against the Young America June 18 and 28, 1887, at Philadelphia.

ATHLETIC.

J. M., Philadelphia.—See page 83 of the CLIPPER ANNUAL for 1891.

R. H. S., Winchester.—The fastest time on record for running one hundred yards is 9⅘s. 2. Very few, either professionals or amateurs, are able to run in even time, which is what you mean.

DICE, DOMINOES, Etc.

M. B. F., West Point.—1. You are entitled to the pair of sixes. Your last throw was foul and you can throw again, the sixes holding good. 2. No answers by mail or telegraph.

TURF.

MURPHY.—Five dollar mutuals on Worth in that race paid $21.45. Cannot state what the two dollar tickets called for.

J. W. B., Philadelphia.—Harry Bassett defeated Longfellow for the Saratoga Cup, July 15, 1872.

W. H. K., Washington.—The thoroughbreds belonging to the late Senator Hearst were disposed of at auction at the Sheepshead Bay track on May 14.

EL DORADO ONCE MORE.—The latest move of the Havana amateurs is to offer a grand match for the championship of the world and a minimum stake of $1,000 a side, between King Steinitz and Herr Tchigorin, to be played at Havana, in December and January next. This is altogether appropriate; for, if a vote could be taken today, we doubt not that a large majority would vote for the magnificent Russ as the second best chess player living. One would think a $4,000 international congress would be enough at one time—not so these large hearted, open handed Cubans.

To Correspondents.

HARRY F. HALL.—Yours of the 16th received with thanks; will examine.

DR. SCHAEFER.—Kindly send those positions and games.

HARRY STEVENS.—Your kind letter and contents received with thanks. See below.

CRITICISMS.—In Position No. 6, Vol. 39, tell Grosvenor to play 27 to 24 for Whites after 2 to 7 is played, and he will find a draw. Position No. 7, Vol. 39, has a double solution. No. 8 Var. (b) should be the trunk.

HARRY STEVENS.

GROSVENOR says that Bro. Stevens cannot demonstrate a draw by 27 to 24. He is willing to wager a year's subscription to THE NEW YORK CLIPPER on the position being a Black win after 27 to 24, all play to be sent to THE CLIPPER. Taking the position as published, and playing 2 to 7, then 27 to 24, he claims a Black win. In giving solutions of positions, there is no fixed rule requiring the longest variation to be the trunk. None of the leading draught columns of the world have ever practised that, consequently we cannot see why Var. (b) of Position No. 8 should be the trunk.

ED. CLIPPER.

BREVITIES.—Ferrie has beaten Bryden in their match for the championship of Scotland and £100 by the score of Ferrie, 6; Bryden, 2; drawn, 19.....Reed accepts Barker's challenge to play a match of thirty games, restricted, for the championship of the world and $300 a side, with the conditions so arranged that $75 for Barker's expenses are to come out of the main stake and the match to take place in Chicago, and he also suggests that the time rule be changed to a certain number of moves per hour. Barker is in splendid form, playing continually with Boston's best players. Reed relies more on study than practice.....James Ogg, a well known Scotch player, is shortly going to publish a book of poems, many of which relate to checkers.....H. Z. Wright expects to make a tour of New York in June.

THE RING.

MYER-BOWEN GLOVE FIGHT.

An Indefensible Decision on Claims of Foul.

The glove fight between Billy Myer, "the Streator Cyclone," and Andy Bowen, of the Crescent City, for a purse of $3,000, of which the loser was to receive $500, came off at the rooms of the Olympic Club, New Orleans, La., on Tuesday night, May 19. The assemblage numbered about three thousand persons, among whom the betting before the fight began ruled at the odds of 100 to 80 on Myer. Medium sized gloves were worn, and the Queensberry rules governed the contest. The men were restricted to 134lb in weight, and both were inside that figure. Bowen was seconded by Tom Kelly and Bob Farrell, while Myer's esquires were his brother Ed. and Link Pope. Captain Alexander Brewster was chosen referee. Time was called at 9.12.

Round 1. Myer had the advantage of height and reach, points looked upon as decided advantage to their possessor. Myer took the centre of the ring, following Bowen around. The Southern boy suddenly led with his right, catching Myer in the left side of the head, felling the "Cyclone" to the ground. Myer was up and at Bowen again in an instant. Bowen rushed in, and in a hot rally Myer was knocked down in the corner of the ring. Five rallies succeeded this encounter, and, though Bowen got the best of the two first, the rest of the round was evenly divided.

2. Myer came up with the evident intention of rushing Bowen, who was following his usual see saw tactics with his arms. Bowen led, but the blow was neatly countered before it could land on the head, where it was aimed. Bowen landed lightly on the left eye with a right hand, half arm blow. He got in a like blow just afterwards, and received a blow in the ear, for which compliment he retaliated with a sounding body blow on Myer's ribs, over the heart. A spirited rally followed, neither man getting any decided advantage.

3. A sharp rally took place in the middle of the ring, and Myer went on a run. Myer's nose was bleeding freely. Bowen landed a right swing on the ribs that nearly knocked Myer down; another sharp rally took place in the middle of the ring, with honors even. Bowen staggered Myer with a right hand swing, and then landed a right hand body punch, whose force was broken by Myer's retreat.

4. Myer received nourishment from his seconds, while Bowen refused it. Bowen landed a right hand on the body, and Myer the right on Bowen's nose. Bowen staggered him with a right hander, and a moment later repeated the dose. Myer was not daunted, but pressed on in the hope af landing his right. He still crowded Bowen when the round closed.

5. Myer still the aggressor, and Bowen a little wary. They boxed for an opening, and both failed to find any. Myer's nose was still bleeding, and Bowen was eager to land on the bruised organ. Bowen hit Myer on the head, and Billy ran away. Myer attempted to fool him, but did not succeed.

6. Andy was now entirely on the defensive, and Myer as confident as could be. He crowded Bowen to the ropes, and Bowen landed his left on the nose. A sharp rally occurred, and Bowen landed his left lightly. Myer received a heavy left on the forehead from Bowen. Myer still crowded Bowen and Andy landed a light right.

7. Myer crowded Bowen again, but not so eagerly Myer hit Bowen's arm a heavy right hand punch. Bowen landed a light left.

8. Meyer frequently dropped his arms to induce Bowen to lead out, but Bowen seemed to be afraid to lead, and when he did Myer knocked Bowen down and had all the best of the round.

9. Bowen staggered Myer with a right, but Myer was undaunted. Bowen landed a light right and repeated the blow on the stomach a moment later.

10. After considerable sparring Myer, in getting Bowen to the ropes, received a good blow on the ribs and sent in a stinging counter on Bowen's jaw. Bowen led twice, but failed to land. Myer's sparring standing him in good stead.

11. Bowen led for Myer's neck and landed a vicious right hand swing. The men clinched and hot infighting followed. Myer fought like a demon and Bowen seconded his blows by the careful use of his openings. Bowen in the infighting uppercut his opponent and laid open the flesh at the side of the left eye. The blood poured out in a jet from the wound and dyed the skin and trunks of the contestants.

12. Myer at the call of time responded promptly. The wound at his eye bled profusely, and he was evidently content to let things go along quietly till he could recover a little. Bowen was not willing to allow him to do this and landed two good body blows. Myer breaking ground at every feint. Myer at the close of the round was still bleeding from the eye and seemed a bit winded. Bowen was panting slightly, but showed no other signs of punishment.

13. Bowen led almost at the outset of the round and landed a light blow in the stomach. Myer broke ground, but when he came up again he continued to press Bowen, evidently trying to get him on the ropes and there pound him. Bowen landed a stinger on the stomach and the round ended while the men were sparring.

14. Myer opened the round with a rush and led for Bowen's head, forcing him to the ropes. He followed up his advantage and landed a number of fair body blows in a sharp rally which followed. Bowen returned a few of the blows, but they were not so powerful as those of his antagonist. The round ended in the "Cyclone's" favor.

15. Bowen led, but fell short, and received a hot blow in the face for his pains. He next tried the pivot blow, but fell short again, and barely escaped a hot counter in return. Myer forced him to the ropes by good generalship, and aimed a blow for the neck, but Bowen avoided what looked to be a knock out by a clever duck. He took the initiative at this point and landed a couple of good blows, but the fighting which took place from then until the call of time was tame.

16. It was anybody's fight at this stage of the game, and the men were content with sparring cautiously. Bowen saw the first opening and landed two blows on the ribs in the region of the heart, Myer breaking the force of the blow by breaking ground. A hot counter followed, and while the men were engaged in the exchange the ball tapped for the close of the round.

17 Bowen landed a good body blow over the heart, and a moment later landed on the stomach. He led a number of times, but failed to land. A clinch, in which Myer showed up well as an infighter and an adept at short arm blows, followed, and when the men broke away, Bowen led and hit Myer on the head, nearly sending him to grass. He swung again for Myer's head, but missed the mark and shot through the ropes like a ball from a rifle. Myer was quick to see the advantage, but before he could land Bowen clinched and the round ended.

18. A number of exchanges of more or less force and in no one's favor consumed the most of the time of the round. Towards the close, however, Bowen landed a sound blow on Myer's ribs and received a sharp counter on the jaw in return.

19. A hot exchange, brought about by a clever lead by Myer, was the feature of the round. When the men broke away Myer swung his right and sent Bowen to his knees. The Southerner was up in a twinkling, but Myer followed him to his corner and gave him a sound drubbing at close range, receiving but little return. The round closed while the men were sparring in the centre of the ring.

20. Myer led and landed briskly on Bowen's jaw, receiving a return in the head which sent him to the ropes. Myer's body was half way through, and, as he straightened up, the upper part of his body was outside of the ring, his feet being within it. While in this position, Bowen struck him in the head. Cries of foul were heard here, but were not allowed, and the bell tapped.

21. Myer landed on Bowen's throat and forced him half way through the ropes. The round ended in a clinch. Cries of "Hurrah for Myer!" came from all parts of the ring.

22. Bowen swung and landed on Myer's ribs, and the "Cyclone" simply grinned. Nothing else was done in the round, and the crowd yelled for the men to "fight."

23. Bowen backed away from Myer, and Billy knocked him against the ropes, his head striking a post, dazing him. Myer followed up his lead and knocked him down repeatedly. Bowen was about gone when the bell sounded for the end of the round. He was lying prostrate on the ground, face downward, with his head and shoulders lying outside of the ring. He tried to raise himself to his knees, but fell back to his original position. He succe

"I'm all right. Why didn't they let us go on? I was making the right kind of a fight. He was the favorite at 100 to 60, wasn't he, and I was supposed to be a 'mug?' Well, why didn't he go in and whip me? I was waiting for him. It was his play to beat me, wasn't it? I was taking no chances. He couldn't beat me, and he knew it. That's what's the matter. Anyhow, I shall have something to say about the championship of the world hereafter, now that Sullivan is out of it." Jackson made the following apologetic statement: "Perhaps I ought to fall back on the excuse that I am growing old. I jarred my right shoulder when I was training for my first fight in this country, and lately pain has come back on me. I have felt it at intervals for a week past, and I found, after fighting thirty rounds, that my shoulder was almost disabled. I think up to that point that we both fought well enough to please anybody."

A candid opinion of the two men and their work in the ring gives Corbett the credit of being the most clever. Corbett's brilliant boxing showed from the first round. He managed to get in the greater number of blows and do the best work. Jackson's great work in previous fights was the peculiar jerking of his slender waist out of his adversaries' reach. He missed the trick when he tried that last week. Corbett's arms were too long and he was too quick. When he reached for the top of Jackson's white tights he usually got there with a report like the bursting of a paper bag. Long before the result could be foreshadowed it became evident that Jackson was getting the first real fight he has had in Yankeeland. All of his trusted blows that have worked havoc with other fighters seemed to fail him. People remembered how he crowded big Joe McAuliffe to the ropes, and how, while he dodged the white man's swings with the rapidity and regularity of a governor on a steam engine, he plastered blow after blow on McAuliffe's neck and face. There was none of that last week. Jackson tried infighting just once. He had reached for Corbett's face, and his fists went over his shoulder. The white man smashed him in the heretofore unreachable stomach. Jackson got a bit mad, avoided a clinch that Corbett tried after sending his blow home, and two black and two white arms whirled like the spokes of a driving wheel, but Corbett's dodges were as good as those of his adversary and he managed to reach Jackson's ear twice, and only got a push on the mouth for it.

After that, Peter seemed to take a dislike to Corbett, and he avoided close relations with him. Then Jackson started in to do the long-arm business, to reach over Corbett's guard and job his face to pieces. He did reach right enough, but when his glove reached the end of its orbit Corbett's head was invariably on one side of it, and Jackson was lucky when the white man's fists were not denting his body at the same time. It was a beautiful exhibition of what men can do in the way of avoiding blows. Corbett's ducking from Jackson's straight-handers was simply phenomenal, and the way he managed to throw his shoulders against the colored pugilist's stomach proved that Jim knows some of the most effective tricks and is one of the shiftiest on his feet that ever graced the California Club's ring. Corbett's favorite blow throughout was a left handed lunge at Peter's stomach, which he accompanied by a low duck to the right. He scored on Peter's bread basket repeatedly, but Jackson was not much distressed by the visitations. He drew too far back to be hurt much by Jim's well meant assaults, and in many cases cleverly stopped Corbett by placing his left fair on the mouth and nose. Jackson certainly did the bulk of the forcing during the contest, but he failed to either corner or induce Corbett to mix things for any length of time. That Peter was tired toward the close was palpable. His legs dragged, and he frequently dropped his hands at his side as if to rest his arms.

Fought with a Broken Arm.

Tom Burns and J. P. Donner met at Moscow, Idaho, on May 19, to fight thirty rounds, under Queensberry rules, with medium sized gloves, for a purse of $1,000. The battle was witnessed by a big crowd, among whom Donner was the favorite in the betting. Burns was seconded by Paddy Lee and Frank Culton. Donner's seconds were Jim Doyle and Skinny Powers. Billy Simper was chosen referee; Warren and Foster timekeepers. The battle was a long and desperate one. Early in the fight Burns broke his arm by a blow which landed on Donner's head. He managed to continue fighting, although terribly punished, until the thirty rounds had been fought. The referee then ordered the fight continued, when Burns' seconds explained that Burns' arm was broken, and then he decided the battle a draw. Donner was the heaviest of the two by over thirty pounds, and Burns, only for the accident, would have won.

BASEBALL.

DIAMOND FIELD GOSSIP.

Latest Doings and Sayings of the Baseball Fraternity.

The Pacific Northwest League has scored a victory over the California League by securing the release of Van Zandt from Manager Harris. The third baseman was granted permission May 13 to sign with the Tacoma Club. His release was due to the receipt of another dispatch from N. E. Young, stating that the Tacoma Club was entitled to the player. The supposition is that he also issued a similar and final order to the Sacramento Club. If so, Huston and Ward will join the Spokane Club. It is said that the above are the only members of the team who are wanted in the North. Before releasing Van Zandt, Harris signed another third baseman in the person of Nick Smith, who was with the Pioneers, and who led the batting record of the California League in 1887.

The Yale team have decided to play the University of Pennsylvania team, at Philadelphia, on Decoration Day, as per agreement, and has canceled the game with Brown University arranged for that date.

The Pittsburg Club, of the National League, has placed Pitcher Staley under the ban. "It will be a long while before he shall ever pitch another game for the Pittsburg Club," said President O'Neill, May 20, at Pittsburg; "in fact, he may not pitch another. Staley may be a good pitcher, but there is no use of keeping a man who does not keep in shape to do good work. Philadelphia, it is true, has asked him for his terms, but they are too high."

The Adelphi Academy and Polytechnic Institute teams played an eleven inning game May 19, at Brooklyn, which resulted in a tie, each scoring six runs.

It required fifteen innings to decide the contest between the Reading and Gorham teams May 20, at Reading, Pa., the home team then winning by a score of 6 to 4.

Pitcher McGuire, of the University of Virginia team, is credited with retiring twenty-one men on strikes in a game played May 18.

Judge Maxwell, of Cincinnati, O., has refused to grant the injunction asked for by the Columbus Club, of the American Association, to prevent Charles Reilly from playing with the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, on the ground that an injunction should not be issued where adequate remedy in damages may be had.

Before the Philadelphia team, of the National League, departed from Pittsburg May 19, for Chicago, Manager Wright gave it out that Delehanty had made a written apology for his bad conduct on May 14, and said if reinstated he would not repeat the action. Manager Wright then reinstated him and reduced his fine to $25.

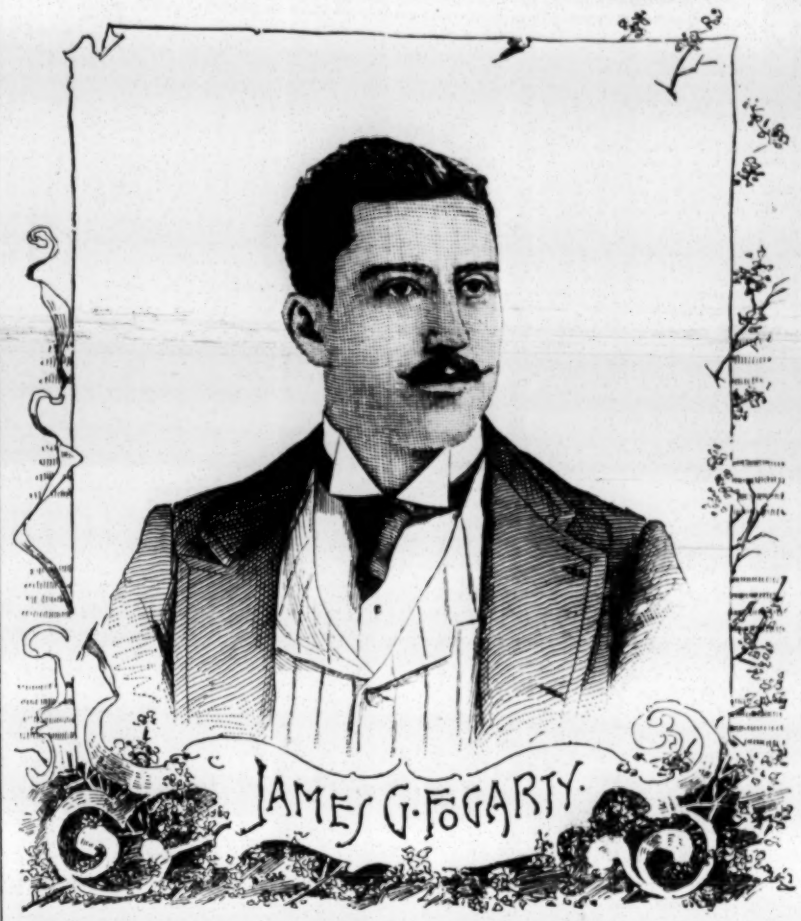
F. K. Stearns, president of the old Detroit Club, of the National League, and Attorney W. J. Gray, of Detroit, were in Judge Hamilton's Court May 16, at Cleveland, O., in the case of the Detroit Club against the Boston Club for $500. The Detroit Club says that in October, 1888, it contracted with Boston to release to it Jas. L. White. Jan. 16, 1889, White's consent not being obtained, the Boston Club offered Detroit $500 to release it from the contract. The offer stood open till March 5, 1889, when it was accepted, yet the Boston Club has not paid. The Boston Club denies that the after was accepted, and sues for $100 paid to clinch the contract for White's release. The suit was begun July 4, 1889.

It took eleven innings to decide the championship contest between the Lincoln and Sioux City teams, of the Western Association, May 16, at Sioux City, Ia., the visitors then winning by a score of 5 to 3. Darnbrough held the home team down to three scattering safe hits.

Manager Chapman has signed for the Louisville Club, of the American Association, Laroque, the second baseman, who played last year with the Pittsburg team, of the National League. He has received a letter from Taylor, stating that a second operation has been performed on the leg which was injured at Baltimore, and that he will leave for his home in a week. Taylor does not think he will be able to play ball again for three weeks.

The Cornell University Manager has telegraphed Princeton, Lafayette, University of Pennsylvania, St. Johns, of Fordham, N. Y., and the University of Virginia that the dates for games to be played with them by Cornell University team are canceled. The reason of this action is that the Cornell faculty positively refuse to let three of the players leave on account of university work.

Catcher Nagle, of the Chicago Club, is said to have disappeared, and no one knows where he is. Captain Anson is much worried about him, and a vigorous search for the missing player is being conducted. Negotiations are on foot to secure the release of Catcher Brown, of the Albany Club, with good prospects of success. The price named is $1,000.



We give above the portrait of James G. Fogarty, one of the most popular players in the profession, who died of hasty consumption May 20, at St. Joseph's Hospital, Philadelphia. He was born Feb. 12, 1864, at San Francisco, Cal., and first played with an amateur club of his native city, of which Charles Sweeney, who was afterwards connected with the Providence Club, of the National League, was the pitcher, Fogarty filling the positions of left field and third base. His first professional engagement was with the Haverly Club, the champion team of San Francisco, for which he covered third base for two seasons. In 1884 Manager Harry Wright, of the Philadelphia Club, of the National League, following the example of several other clubs, started a reserve team, and upon the recommendation of Waller Wallace, who, by the way, also died of consumption May 2 last, Fogarty was signed as an infielder. The reserve team was a costly experiment, and the players thereof were soon released. Fogarty was ambitious, and urged Manager Wright to give him a chance to show what he could do in the outfield. In a game with the Chicago Club, at Recreation Park, Philadelphia, at the commencement of the championship season of 1884, he was given a trial and distinguished himself by two wonderful catches, and as Remsen had proved weak at the bat, Fogarty took his place as the centre fielder of the Philadelphia Club, with which he remained for six successive seasons. In 1890 Fogarty played with the Philadelphia Club, of the Players' League. He accompanied the Chicago and All America combination, as the left fielder of the latter team, on their memorable tour around the world. Fogarty also formed one of the Philadelphia team that visited Cuba in November, 1886. As an outfielder Fogarty never had a superior, and in base running he ranked with the best—indeed, two years ago he was the champion base runner of the National League, and for winning that title he was banqueted by his friends at Philadelphia, and besides, was presented with a $250 gold watch and other prizes. As a batter he did not rank very high, but he was a good waiter, reached first base often, and being a great run getter, he was considered a valuable player. Fogarty spent last Winter at his mother's home at Los Angeles, Cal., and on Feb. 17, last, arrived in Philadelphia, where he had many friends and admirers. He had been offered an engagement for the present season by the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, and on his arrival in Philadelphia he was then in robust health, weighing about 180 pounds. The sudden change from the warm climate of California, to the cold, damp weather in the East, which prevailed at that time, was too much for even so robust a constitution as that which Fogarty possessed, and six days later he was confined to his room at the Girard House, with pneumonia. He sank rapidly, and for a while his life was despaired of, but his physicians checked the fever, and a month later he was, his friends supposed, past all danger and on the road to recovery. The disease from which he had just recovered had, however, impaired his lungs, and his physicians soon discovered that consumption had set in, and that there was no hope left for him ever getting well again. Fogarty's friends were informed of his condition, and since then they have done everything that lay in their power to make him as comfortable as possible. About six weeks ago Fogarty was taken from the Girard House to the residence of a friend, where he received good nursing and the best of medical attention, but in the meantime he sank so rapidly that, at his own request, believing the change would do him good, he was on May 14 removed to St. Joseph's Hospital, where he died about one o'clock on the afternoon of May 20. Fogarty, who was of a very genial and companionable disposition, had a host of friends both in and out of the profession, and they will hear with sincere regret of his untimely demise. The remains were sent for interment on May 23 to Los Angeles, Cal., where his mother resides.

James E. Whitney, who died of consumption May 21, at Binghamton, N. Y., was once a prominent professional pitcher. He hailed from that city and was about thirty-five years old. His ball playing career commenced in 1878, when he occupied the left fielder's position, in a few games with the Crickets of Binghamton, and he then finished the season as first baseman of the Oswego Club. He first filled the pitcher's position in 1879, when he was connected with the professional team representing Omaha, Neb., in the Northwestern League. He accompanied the Omaha team on its trip to San Francisco, Cal., September, 1879, and while there greatly distinguished himself by effective pitching, on one occasion retiring a strong team, including several well known Eastern professionals, for a solitary safe hit. He also was credited with the feat of pitching only three ball in one inning before the side was put out. His success led to his engagement by the Knickerbocker Club, of San Francisco, with which he remained until the close of 1880. His pitching virtually won for the Knickerbockers the championship of the California League, he twice retiring the Athletics—who then flew the pennant—for only one safe hit to a game. Harry Wright, who was then managing the Boston team, of the National League, engaged him, and he officiated in the pitcher's position in sixty-three out of the eighty-three championship games played during 1881. On four separate occasions that year his delivery proved so puzzling that only two safe hits to a game were made off him, and the Buffalos—numbering some of the best batsmen then in the profession—managed to get only three hits off his pitching in a thirteen inning game. He also held the Buffalos down to one run in three successive games, May 10, 11 and 12, 1881. At the close of that season he ranked second in official pitching averages of the National League. He remained with the Boston Club until the close of 1885, each season evidencing a marked improvement in his pitching. His most remarkable feat was the striking out of sixteen of the Chicagos in a championship game played June 14, 1883, at Boston. His excellent pitching aided materially in the Boston Club's winning the National League championship in 1883. In 1886, Whitney was one of the pitchers for the Kansas City Club, of the National League, and in 1887 and 1888 he filled the same position for the Washington Club, of the same league. In 1889 he pitched for the Buffalo Club, of the International League. About eight years ago he married a sister of George Haddock, the present pitcher of the Boston Club, of the American Association. Whitney's last appearance was with John Morrill's nine about a year ago, and he then went to Binghamton for the benefit of his health, which was very poor. It is said that his illness was hereditary, and that Whitney seemed to think that it was useless for him to attempt to drive it off. He started in to play last season, but his system was unable to stand the strain, and he entered into the hay and grain business with Haddock on Norfolk Street, Dorchester, at which place he has lived since his marriage. His constitution could not bear up in New England climate, and, by the advice of his physician, he went to Binghampton, where he failed rapidly. He had a large circle of friends, who admired his genial good nature and regret his death.

Lawyers L. A. Russell, of Cleveland, and Lowery Jackson, of Cincinnati, who are taking evidence in the contention over the sale of the Cincinnati Club, by A. L. Johnson, to the National League, visited Baltimore May 21. In the morning they heard the testimony of President Von der Horst, of the Baltimore Club, and Manager Schmelz, of the Columbus Club. The vital point in the case is in reference to the exact manner in which Messrs Wagner and Prince transferred their interests in the club to Johnson.

Short stop Fisher, of the Quincy Club, has, by order of the Board of Control, returned to the Seattle Club $150, which he received as advance money and railroad fare last August, when he accepted the money, but failed to report for duty at Seattle. Fisher could not play with the Quincy Club until he made restitution.

In the championship game played May 21, at Washington, between the Washington and Louisville teams, of the American Association, Quarles, who then made his first appearance with the home team, retired the Louisvilles in one inning off only three pitched balls.

The Staten Island Athletic Club's team declined to play the Crescent Athletics May 16, at West New Brighton, because the latter were one man short of the regulation nine, and the game was declared forfeited to the Staten Islands by the umpire. His decision, however, will be overruled by the Executive Committee of the Amateur League, as the rule requiring nine men to a team was wiped out last year by the Amateur League.

The Louisville Club, of the American Association, wired Pitcher Staley telling him that it would take him right away. Staley has not been released, and will not likely be, for he says he will not jump the National League. The Brooklyn Club, it is said, will make another effort for Staley. President Byrne wanted to sign him May 20, at Pittsburg, but Ward said he had four good pitchers and did not need him. He has probably changed his mind since, because Caruthers is not in his usual form.

Catcher Donohue, of the Columbus Club, of the American Association, who has been sick at Boston of typhoid fever, was able to leave that city May 21. He started for Columbus, where he hopes he can resume his place on the team after it returns from its Eastern trip. Donohue has been under medical treatment, and is almost completely recovered. He will rest in Columbus several days in order to regain his strength.

Pitchers Widner and Fitzgerald, of the Sioux City Club, were nearly suffocated by the gas being accidentally turned on in their hotel May 17, at Sioux City. It took half a day to bring them around to consciousness.

Capt. Ward, of the Brooklyn team, of the National League, telegraphed $100 from Pittsburg May 21, to Philadelphia, to be used in purchasing a floral tribute for James G. Fogarty, as a mark of respect from the Brotherhood, of which the deceased was a prominent member. The Athletic players also raised $75 among themselves for a floral piece for Fogarty, while a similar amount was subscribed by the Cincinnati players for the same purpose. The money will be forwarded by telegraph to a florist at Los Angelos, Cal., with a request to have both pieces delivered at the residence of Mrs. Fogarty by the time the remains reach there.

In the championship contest May 20, between the Rochester and New Haven teams, of the Eastern Association, Gilliland was in the box for the visitors, and his work was excellent. Eleven of the home team struck out, and only six scattering safe hits were made off him. In the fourth inning, with the bases full and no one out, Gilliland retired the next three batsmen on strikes.

In the championship game between the Kansas City and Minneapolis teams, of the Western Association, played May 18, at Minneapolis, Pickett, of the visiting team, made five safe hits, including two double baggers. The Kansas City team made twenty-four safe hits, with a total of thirty-six bases, and the Minneapolis got seventeen hits, for a total of thirty-one bases.

A home run hit by Kappel in the first inning of a game played May 20, at Peoria, Ill., is all that saved the home team from a shut out by the Bay Citys, the latter winning by a score of 7 to 1. In the contest between the Terre Hautes and Detroits May 19, at Terre Haute, Ind., the former won by a score of 4 to 2. A home run hit by Morrison over the fence then also saved the visitors from a shut out.

President Kramer has called a special meeting of the American Association, to be held this week at Cincinnati.

The Amherst and Dartmouth College teams, of the American College Association, played May 22, at Amherst, Mass., the former winning by a score of 10 to 1.

Pitcher Smith, recently released by the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, has been signed by the Philadelphia Club, of the same organization. Smith played with the Philadelphia team before joining the Pittsburgs.

Alvord, late of the Cleveland Club, of the National League, has been signed by the Washington Club, of the American Association, and will play third base for its team.

The players of the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, will wear emblems of mourning for thirty days, out of respect to the memory of James G. Fogarty, who was to have signed with that team for the present season.

It is stated that the St. Paul Club, of the Western Association, is to be sold to Anderson, of Duluth, and that the team will fill the season out in that city. The team has been drawing only about two hundred people a day for the last week, owing to its losses of games. It is said, also, that either the Lincoln or Sioux City Club will be purchased by West Superior.

The games for the championship of the California League played May 15 resulted as follow: At Oakland, the Oaklands defeated the San Joses by a score of 4 to 0. Stephens retired the losers with three scattering singles. At Sacramento, the San Franciscos were beaten by the home team by a score of 5 to 2.

Pitcher Staley has asked for his release from the Pittsburg Club, of the National League, and it was refused. Staley told President O'Neill that he had been wronged and that he wanted to leave that club. He thinks he can get an engagement with some club of the National League or the American Association.

The Grand Rapids and Terre Haute teams, of the Northwestern League, played a fifteen inning game May 17, at Terre Haute, Ind., the visitors winning by a score of 5 to 4.

A dispatch from Cincinnati, O., dated May 24, says: "Chief of Police Dietsch carried out his threat and arrested the players of both the Cincinnati and Athletic teams this afternoon before the game was well under way. There were over four thousand people on the grounds and about twice as many crowded outside the gates. Both teams arrived here on a special train from the East at 12.30 o'clock, and, after taking dinner at the Grand Hotel, proceded to the grounds. They had hardly entered the enclosure before the Superintendent of Police, supported by about one hundred men on foot and horseback, pounded at the gates for admission. The players dressed hurriedly and took the field for practice. The first inning was about completed when Col. Dietsch threw up his hand, and at the signal the players left the diamond, and after dressing were taken in busses to the police station. Here was found an extra squad of fifty police and five patrol wagons. The players were registered and immediately released on bonds. The authorities anticipated trouble, but there wasn't a disturbance of any kind. The attorney for the club will demand a jury trial in the police court. The American Association people will push Mayor Mosby to the wall for his failure to enforce the Sunday law in regard to saloons and theatrical performances. Mr. Von der Ahe wired President Kramer to proceed at once to secure grounds in Covington, Ky., just across the river from Cincinnati."

The American Association will probably extend its championship season from Oct. 4 to Oct. 25. In order to definitely determine the question President Kramer has called a general meeting of all the clubs for June 1 at Cincinnati. The cause for a sentiment in favor of the change is that the season was opened much earlier than usual, and the games will not last up to the usual time for ending them in October under the present arrangement. All of the clubs are supposed to be in favor of the extension, and it will be made, if at all, by adding one or more game on each series after the meeting. This plan would give each club fourteen more games than are now on the schedule, or one hundred and fifty-four instead of one hundred and forty for the entire year. There has also been some talk of black listing contract jumpers, but the term "black list" will not be used.

The St. Paul Globe, of May 21, says: "For several days stories have been bandied about that the St. Paul team was to be transferred to Duluth, West Superior or Grand Rapids, and several of the newspapers have taken a turn at giving tales of options and other details as to the time and cause of the proposed transfer. Young men with pockets full of money from Duluth and West Superior have been represented as following Manager Watkins all over town making princely offers and raising their bids periodically. Now it turns out that all this is mere gratuitous gossip. Manager Watkins said last night that he hadn't given the matter of leaving St. Paul a thought, and had not received so much as a hint of an offer for his franchise by outside parties. He is going right on signing players for his vacant spots, and in a few days hopes to have a team that will cope with the best of them."

The Tamaqua team defeated the Jeanesville Club May 23, at Tamaqua, Pa., by a score of 9 to 0. The visitors failed to make a safe hit off Gormley.

The contest between the Tacony team and the Central Grays, played May 23, at Philadelphia, Pa., resulted in a victory for the former by a score of 11 to 3. The singular feature of the contest was the fact that the victors made only three safe hits against the seven scored by their opponents.

In an altercation that occurred on the evening of May 23, at Camden, N. J., while returning home from a game at Woodbury, Lewis A. Clair, catcher for the amateur Woodland Club, of Philadelphia, was stabbed in the breast and killed by a man named John Sweeney.

The Lafayette College team defeated the Lehightons May 23, at Lehighton, Pa., by a score of 6 to 3. The victors made only four hits against five made by the home team.

An Extraordinary Contest.

The most remarkable championship contest on record was that between the Tacoma and Seattle Clubs, of the Pacific Northwest League, played May 16, at Tacoma, Wash., no fewer than twenty-two innings then being necessary to decide the question of superiority. The score stood a tie each inning after the sixth. In the fifteenth and eighteenth innings each club again scored, and in the twenty-second inning the home team managed to get in the winning run. O'Neil gave way to Keenan after the sixth inning. Donahue held the visitors down to eleven safe hits, which were scattered through nine innings. Routcliffe did the best batting, his five safe hits including a double bagger. Thirty nine catches were made by the outfielders, Routcliffe and Berger each being credited with ten. As a matter of record we append the score of this prolonged contest:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

The Eastern Clubs Finishing Their Unsuccessful Western Campaign.

Chicago vs. Brooklyn.

The fourth game was played May 19, at Chicago, the home team then having no trouble in securing a decisive victory, thanks to their superior batting and faultless fielding. Ward reappeared with the Brooklyns, while Burns made his first appearance with the Chicagos in this game. Lovett was batted hard in the first and seventh innings, seven safe hits then yielding six runs. Ryan led in batting, with four hits, including a triple and double bagger. Stein kept the Brooklyns from making more than seven safe hits, five being bunched in two innings, and one run, the latter scored by Ward, after he had been given a base on balls in the seventh inning.

Cleveland vs. New York.

The fourth game was played May 19, at Cleveland, the New Yorks then scoring their first victory of the series. Clarke reappeared as catcher with the visitors, thus allowing O'Rourke to resume his position at left field, where he made four remarkable catches, cutting off as many seemingly safe hits. Ewing, who received perfect support, held the Clevelands down to seven safe hits, five of which were made in the last three innings. The New Yorks bunched nine safe hits in the first two innings, when they secured seven runs and a winning lead. Young then settled down, and only one more safe hit was made off him during the remainder of the contest.

Pittsburg vs. Philadelphia.

The Philadelphias defeated the Pittsburgs, for the second time, May 19, at Pittsburg, and thus evened up the victories in the series. Delehanty was reinstated, and appeared with the Philadelphias in this game. Staley was batted hard from the start, the visitors bunching five safe hits in the sixth inning, when, with a wild throw by Fields and a base on balls, they secured six runs and the victory. The home team failed to bat Thornton, except in the seventh and eighth innings, when six safe hits yielded four runs. Shindle did the best batting, his four successive safe hits including a double bagger. Bauer distinguished himself by a remarkable running catch.

Cincinnati vs. Boston.

The fourth game was played May 19, at Cincinnati, the home team then winning for the third time in succession. The third inning settled the question of victory, Clarkson giving two bases on balls, and being batted four times safely, Radbourn getting a double bagger that sent in three of the six runs then scored. Clarkson was also hit hard in the seventh and eighth innings, and Tucker, who pitched in the ninth, fared no better. Radbourn held the visitors down to three hits and a like number of runs in the three innings that he pitched, and then gave way to Mullane. Latham's batting and Smith's short stopping were the chief features of the contest.

Cleveland vs. Boston.

Heavy batting and brilliant fielding marked the game played May 20, at Cleveland, it being the opening contest of the series between these teams. The Bostons started off with the lead, bunching five safe hits for a like number of runs in the first inning. The Clevelands, however, rolled up ten runs in the second inning, when they knocked Nichols out of the box, batting him eight times safely. Both clubs changed their pitchers after the second inning, Getzein taking Nichols' place, whi e Vian gave way to Gruber. The change worked well for the home team, who finally won. A triple play was made by the visitors in the third inning. With the bases full, Zimmer hit to Getzein, who fielded the ball to Bennett, who then threw to Tucker in time to get Zimmer, and Tucker threw the ball back to Bennett in time to put out Doyle. In the same inning Davis, while running at full speed, scooped up a low liner and made a brilliant double play, thus saving at least three runs. Getzein hit the ball over the left field fence for a home run in the ninth inning.

The above result was reversed May 21, when safe hits were very few, especially on the part of the home team. Clarkson held the Clevelands down to four safe hits, two of which were made in the third inning and then yielded two runs. Vian was very wild, giving seven men bases on balls, four of whom scored runs. He, however, was batted consecutively only in the seventh inning, when three safe hits helped the Bostons to the three winning runs. Quinn led in batting, making three singles. Two splendid stops by Childs were the fielding features.

Cold and threatening weather caused a small attendance May 22, when the home team won in a game limited to eight innings on account of darkness. The Clevelands fielded finely and were lucky in bunching five of their eight safe hits in two innings, when they scored five runs. The Bostons were unable to bat Young during the first six innings, but hit him hard at the finish. He, however, saved the game by effective pitching when men were on the bases. Doyle was injured by being hit on the arm by a pitched ball and Seward took his place, playing centre field, while Davis was substituted at third base.

Timely and hard hitting helped the home team to win, May 23. Clarkson, who was very wild, was also batted freely, especially in the fifth and sixth innings, when the Clevelands secured six safe hits and five runs. Gruber kept the hits well scattered, except in the fifth, when three helped the Bostons to their only earned run. An alleged greased ball was substituted in the seventh inning, but the Clevelands managed to throw it out of the grounds after Gruber had given three men in succession bases on balls. Davis made several clever catches, including a remarkable left handed one.

The New Yorks won the third game of the series May 23, by timely hitting and superior all around work. The New Yorks scored twice in the first inning. Gore led off with a single, but was forced at second on Richardson's line hit to Latham. Tiernan went out on a fly to Latham. Conner made a base hit, and Glasscock was given his base on balls. With three men on the bases, O'Rourke made a two base hit and sent in two runs. Three more runs were made in the second inning, chiefly on errors by Keenan, which gave the New Yorks such a lead that the home team could not overcome. John Ewing pitched admirably and was well supported.

Pittsburg vs. Brooklyn.

The Brooklyns were tardy in their arrival and took the field without any preliminary practice May 20, at Pittsburg, the home team then winning by superior batting, but only after an exciting finish. Baldwin was in fine form, keeping the Brooklyns from making more than six safe hits, which were scattered through as many innings. Hemming was batted hard in the second and eighth innings, giving way to Caruthers after three hits had been made off him in the eighth.

The home team won again May 21, when unfavorable weather caused the smallest attendance of the season. The grounds were in a muddy condition from recent rain. The Pittsburgs pounded Caruthers freely, especially in the third inning, when five safe hits helped them to four earned runs and the victory. King kept the Brooklyns from bunching their hits, except in the first and sixth innings, when five let in three runs. Burns and Carroll led in batting for their respective teams.

The Bostons made their first appearance of the season at Pittsburg, May 25, when they then defeated the home team in a contest that required ten innings before a result was reached. Both Nichols and Stratton were in great form, and pitched with telling effect. The former struck out twelve of the home team. Browning particularly was easy, and went out four times through his inability to hit the ball. Reilly's errors gave the Bostons three runs. Bauer's fielding and Miller's batting were the features.

It was a heavy batting contest in which the visitors excelled. The contest was virtually won in the third inning, when the Brooklyns by hard hitting scored eight runs. Clever catching by Daly, a running catch by Davis, and Ward's batting and fielding were the features.

The Cherry Diamond Opening.

The initial games of the Manhattan Athletic Club for the season of 1891 were held at their grounds at Eighth Avenue and Fifty-sixth Street, this city, on Saturday afternoon, May 23. The competitions were highly interesting as a rule, and they were watched with evident pleasure by the spectators. Nothing that demands special mention was accomplished during the afternoon, however. The matter was kept a profound secret from the men, and did not leak out until late in the day, when over one hundred men started for the glen in buggies. EN ROUTE.

Hart's Boston Vaudeville Co.,
BIG BRASS BAND AND ORCHESTRA,

Will make a Summer tour of the principal cities in the Northwest, commencing at St. Paul, Minn., on May 25, 1891. The recent Chicago engagement played by this Company was a most satisfactory one for Summer season. THE CHICAGO HERALD of May 20 speaks in the condensed manner as here given:

Hart's Boston Vaudeville Co. is one of the most meritorious companies that has appeared at the Madison Street Opera House this season. A good entertainment, without any offensive features, is given.

MADISON STREET.—Hart's Boston Vaudeville Co. is drawing crowded houses this week. The attraction is by far the best which the management has presented for some time, and has proven a strong drawing card for the ladies and children.—THE CHICAGO GLOBE.

A good specialty performance is being presented at the Madison Street Opera House this week by the Hart Vaudeville Co. Several of the features are remarkable. Jules Keller, "the Human Enigma," gives an extraordinary performance as an acrobat, who does all his feats on his hands, the muscular development of his arms being phenomenal. Mons. Sablon, the mimic, gives some astonishing likenesses of celebrated people. The Sisters Coulson are perhaps the best rope dancers on the stage, and good entertainment is afforded by Harry La Rosa, Mrs. Hanley, Emerson and Cook, and others.—THE CHICAGO INTER-OCEAN.

Those now with Hart's Co. are Jules Keller, Sisters Coulson, Harry La Rose, Emerson and Cook, McCloud and Melville, Great Sablon, Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Hanley, Grace Milburn, and Emerson and Clark (the originals Morton and Willis). Most of the principals have been re-engaged for the coming seasons of 1891-2. WANTED QUICK—Artists with big comedy acts; also first class female attraction. Managers with good theatres desiring to play this company, with fine printing, photo displays, etc., will do well to submit their open time at once. Address

WILLIS CLARK,
Commercial Hotel (Permanent), Chicago, Ill.

P. S.—No manager's open time exposed or trifled with.

Closed a 38 weeks' engagement of brilliant success with the Corinne Kimball Opera and Burlesque Co. We do a good strong novelty, and would like to arrange with A 1 combination for season '91-92.

READ A FEW OF OUR MANY PRESS NOTICES.

The Brunelles are very successful in their specialty. "Tintamaresque," in "Carmen," at the Bush. Their cat duet gains the greatest applause of the evening.—San Francisco Music and Drama.

The Brunelles in their comical cat duet evoked great applause.—Philadelphia Call.

The specialty of the Brunelles stands out distinctly in the production of "Carmen."—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Aside from Miss Corinne and Mr. Fostelle, the company contains no member that adds anything to the performance of an enjoyable nature, aside from the Brunelles, who do the cat duet in the last act.—Fargo (N. D.) Sunday Argus.

ATTENTION,

THEATRICAL AGENTS AND ADVERTISERS.

You need no longer fear to visit Philadelphia, for if you use the American Bill Posting Co.

You will be better advertised than ever before in the Quaker City.

The following letter is self explanatory, being from one of the best known advertisers in America, representing the largest show on earth, and having billed Philadelphia in '88, '89, '90 and '91, each year trying to do better than the former one, and never was satisfied until this season.

This fact alone should be accepted by the advertising public as the best proof of the ability of the AMERICAN BILL POSTING CO. to give satisfaction.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 25, 1891.

THE AMERICAN BILL POSTING CO., Philadelphia, Pa.—GENTLEMEN: It is with pleasure that I write you, thanking you for the able and efficient manner in which you have billed the Adam Forepaugh Shows for '91.

It has been my duty as advertising agent of the Forepaugh Shows to bill Philadelphia during '88, '89, '90 and '91, each year I tried to bill the city better than the former one, but I must say in that I never succeeded until this season, and then only through your assistance in furnishing me with a full line of your bill boards, which I consider by far the best in the city.

I will take great pleasure in recommending you by either letter or telegram to any advertiser in America as one of the ablest bill posting firms in existence.

Rest assured that your success is my only wish, and should you need my assistance at any time simply command me. Yours very truly, R. C. CAMPBELL, General Agent Adam Forepaugh Shows.

NOT ONE DISSENTING OPINION.

A success was made promptly and maintained. It should have great vogue.—PHILA. PRESS.
An emphatic success. A success the more gratifying because won entirely by artistic means.—TIMES.
Has scored a decided hit The current of laughter provoked was unbroken from first to last.—NORTH AMERICAN.
The piece was handsomely staged, and should be a popular success.—RECORD.
One of the brightest of new plays. The laughter was almost continuous, the actors being so interrupted by the outbursts of applause that they were obliged to repeat their lines.—LEDGER
Originality marks every line. The characters are clear, well defined and cameo cut, and it is doubtful whether Dickens, even in his palmiest days, could have sketched them with a more masterly hand.—INQUIRER.

It should have a prosperous existence, because the stage has room for mirth provoking plays that are wholesome.—BULLETIN.
It is a comedy, farce comedy, absurd farce comedy. The house was packed from top to bottom.—TELEGRAPH.
Rarely in the history of the stage has a play made such a pronounced and intantaneous success.—ITEM.
A clean, clever, witty comedy is "Niobe," free from gags, loud voiced soubrettes, pugilists and farm animals.—MUSIC AND DRAMA.
Has achieved an unequivocal success. The new fantastic comedy has caught on in great shape.—TRANSCRIPT.
The play and company are a great success.—DISPATCH.

Certainly the new comedy has achieved a triumph. It is cleverly constructed and brimful of fresh fun.—TAGGERT'S TIMES.
A standing proof that it is possible to combine the highest literary merit with the elements of popularity.—SUNDAY WORLD.
There is no hesitation in saying "Niobe" will be one of the greatest winners this country has ever known.—DRAMATIC TIMES.
"Niobe" is a go. There is "ginger" in every situation.—DRAMATIC NEWS.
An instaneous and most emphatic success.—N. Y. DRAMATIC MIRROR.
The company is as well put together as the piece. The Paultons are individually "in it," as the saying goes, and mean to stay, and there is no doubt, to call on another phrase in kind, "is a go."—N. Y. HERALD.
